Dean admits testimony is from memory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III told the Senate Watergate committee today he took no notes of some meetings with President Nixon because "some of the things that were being said in these meetings...were very incriminating to the President."

Answering a series of White House questions posed through Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, Dean said he did not want documents recording his presidential meetings because the White House had a problem with information becoming public.

Pressed for his recollection of a key meeting with Nixon on Sept. 15, 1972, Dean said he could not repeat the exact words used by Nixon, but said his mind "certainly perceives the message being given."

Dean said conversations in the meetings included discussions of such matters as clemency for E. Howard Hunt and payoffs for convicted Watergate defendants, all mentioned earlier during his previous three days of testimony.

In response to White House questions about how Dean was able to remember what had happened several months or a year ago, Dean said he had kept a file of newspaper stories that often acted as a "trigger" to his memory.

Dean testified he has no knowledge that John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's former top domestic aide, had prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in.

Inouye was posing a series of questions prepared by J. Fred Buzhardt, special counsel to the White House.

The questions followed up on a complex White House memo read by Inouye Wednesday which accused Dean of being a man ready to sacrifice the President to save himself from jail, and which also abandoned any White House support for former attorney general and Nixon campaign chief John N. Mitchell.

Dean has steadily refused since presenting his six-hour case Monday to recant his story that Nixon and his chief aides, particularly Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman, were fully aware of the lengthy and elaborate cover-up.

He insisted he was always the messenger and never the master of a conspiracy to conceal the truth.

The ousted White House counsel replied to the administration counterattack with a new offensive of his own before the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday.

He produced what he said was the official White House black list of the President's enemies in Congress and in politics, business, labor, journalism, the universities and the theater.

And Dean supplied the committee with copies of White House memos that indicated preparations were being made two years ago to "use the available federal machinery to screw our political enemies."

Meanwhile, in a surprise move, Frederick C. LaRue, a former Nixon campaign aide and White House consultant, was permitted to plead guilty in U.S. District Court to a single conspiracy charge in exchange for his promise to testify against others involved in the Watergate scandal. In return, prosecutors had agreed not to press any other charges against him.

Dean is to return to the Senate witness stand for a fourth day today to undergo a cross examination, based on a series of questions written by White House special counsel J. Fred Buzhardt.

In San Clemente, Calif., a White House spokesman again refused to predict the President might comment on Dean's testimony. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon did not want to respond "in a fragmentary way" and that comments "while the hearings are in progress would not be beneficial to the committee."

Allen faces drug charge

JACKSON — A rural Dexter man remained in Cape Girardeau County jail Wednesday following his arrest on a drug charge Monday night in Cape Girardeau.

Bond for Jeffrey Smyth Allen, about 20, is set at $2,500. He was to be arraigned today before Magistrate Jerry T. Estes on a charge of possessing a controlled substance.

Allen was arrested at Lorimier and Merriwether streets about 11:15 p.m. Monday after officers on patrol saw him drive through a stop sign at Independence and Lorimier. Police said they found a block of more than 3.5 grams of hashish — a felony offense — in Allen's car. He also had a smoking pipe, but it contained no traces of the drug, police said.

Driver arrested; hit trailer, tree

James Kenneth Butler, 17, 301 Edmondson St., was arrested Wednesday night for driving while intoxicated and destroying private property after he ran his car into a mobile home, a bird feeder and a tree.

Butler allegedly damaged an awning and bird feeder about 10:30 p.m. on Mobile Drive. Damage to the awning was placed at $50 and damage to the bird feeder at $25. The tree was not damaged.

Robert Earl Jarvis, 20, of 613 Taylor was arrested Wednesday for indecent exposure after he allegedly exposed himself to a 13-year - old girl.

Other arrests announced today include Eugene Pride, 205 Luther, careless and imprudent driving; Bobby Joe Dover, 322 William, careless and imprudent driving; John E. Robinson, 669 Park, careless and imprudent driving; and Terry Lynn Hupp, Route Four, Box 421, speeding.

Schlesinger confirmed by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate confirmed President Nixon's nomination of James R. Schlesinger as secretary of Defense today.

The action came after Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., dropped his objections to the nomination.

Proxmire told the Senate that he is still disturbed about Schlesinger's statement that, under certain conditions, he would recommend resumption of U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

In response to Proxmire's request that he elaborate, Schlesinger said the only condition he could forsee for such a recommendation would be "major aggressive actions by North Vietnam which would threaten South Vietnam in violation of the Paris agreements."

Proxmire called that "so generalized" an answer it didn't mean very much.

However, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., acting chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he didn't see how the nominee could answer the question any other way.

Had he sided with Congress on the question of Indochina bombing, Symington said, he would be embarrassed at Cabinet meetings and might have his name withdrawn.

Schlesinger, former head of the Central Intelligence Agency and the Atomic Energy Commission, will succeed Elliot L. Richardson, now attorney general.

R.I.P. SACB

It is ironic, to say the least, that Richard M. Nixon should preside over the liquidation of a federal agency he helped to create while serving as a member of Congress. But when the Subversive Activities Control Board (SACB) closes up shop on Saturday, June 30, it will do so as a casualty of President Nixon's fiscal 1974 budget. The SACB will have few mourners. Crippled by court- imposed restrictions on its authority, the board has held few public hearings in the past decade. Nevertheless, its five presidentially appointed members each earn $36,000 a year.

The Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, passed over President Truman's veto, was the brainchild of Rep. Richard M. Nixon (R Calif.) and Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R S.D.). The following year, SACB set out to expose Communists and their organizations through hearings. It concluded that the Communist Party U.S.A. was a Communist - action group under foreign domination and ordered it to register as such with the Justice Department. But the party appealed the order, and in 1965 the Supreme Court ruled in the party's favor. Other court rulings vacating registration orders followed.

No other agency will assume SACB's functions after June 30. But the board believes it has accomplished something. Communist Party U.S.A. membership dropped from 52,000 in 1951 to 9,000 in 1961, an SACB spokesman told Editorial Research Reports. In the years since the 1965 Supreme Court decision, party membership has risen to between 14,000 and 15,000. In addition, the spokesman said, 20 of 23 Communist- front organizations discredited by the SACB have folded.

Efforts to reincarnate SACB have met with little response. A bill introduced in 1971 by Reps. Richard H. Ichord (D Mo.) and Richardson Pryor (D N.C.) would have required federal job applicants to take loyalty oaths. The measure was defeated by voice vote. Ichord has come back with another bill to revamp the federal loyalty- security system and to create a Federal Employee Security and Appeals Commission. But support for these measures has been lukewarm even on the part of SACB supporters, and opponents contend that there is no constitutional basis for such loyalty programs.

Sudden, explosive increases in wholesale prices recently demonstrated one of the greatest dangers of price and wage control which many have warned against from the beginning. They are merely a shield behind which the basic force of inflation (excessive governmental deficit spending) continues to build up.

Too many politicians feel safe in advocating bigger and better vote- getting handouts, and taxpayers tend to believe the double- talk about inflation having been brought under "control." Then suddenly, under the pressure of new spending records, we have a dollar crisis, and living costs again take off for the stratosphere. Each time wage and price controls are applied, it is like tying down a safety valve on a steam boiler while continuing to stoke the furnace.

So far, the Nixon Administration seems determined to curb government spending if we are to succeed in stemming inflation. But it is up to the taxpayers and to all citizens to recognize and judge the performance of their elected representatives in Congress, state legislatures and even on the local levels accordingly.

NEW YORK (AP) "What am I going to do when I retire?"

This question stirs a feeling akin to panic in many Americans as they near the end of their time in harness.

Most of us complain now and then about how routine our lives are, but as retirement looms we begin to look upon that routine as a kind of sanctuary. We want to cling to it. It is our liferaft.

Survivors agree that the best way to minimize retirement panic is to prepare for it ahead of the event by making constructive plans on where you will live and how you will spend your time.

Somehow I have the feeling this advice falls a little short. It seems to me that it is as important to decide what you're not going to do after retirement as it is to decide what you will do.

The list is purely tentative, so far, but at the moment here are a few things I am determined not to do:

Go to pot. Cigars are good enough to me.

Develop a hobby. What is the use of collecting things after 65? Your heirs only throw it out later as trash.

Join a Golden Years Club immediately. I don't feel like jumping into a sardine canful of old folks the very day I retire. Later maybe.

Learn to play bridge or chess. Most of the people you meet who make a ritual of games are bores or small-time card sharps.

Haunt a golf course. I'd rather work every day than have to play golf every day.

Marry a rich widow. Why go to hell so soon? There is no worse hell than living off a wealthy woman's alms — even if you're 80.

What are the things a fellow can do after retiring that will enable him to lead a more contented life? Here are a few things on my list of things to do:

Become more crotchety. An old man without crotchets is as dull as a bowlful of tapioca pudding at an orgy.

Take a trip or two on a tramp steamer.

See Africa from stem to stern.

Learn a foreign language in a place where they speak it.

Never visit a dentist again.

Make a bonfire of my 25 books on dieting.

Run off with a red-haired nurse or waitress even if it keeps me broke the rest of my life buying her hair dye.

Who's afraid of retirement? Not the man who is prepared.

"Maybe We Need a New Compass!"

DEVALUATION JUST SCRATCHES SURFACE

The 10 per cent devaluation of the dollar has ended the lastest monetary crisis and given the United States a breathing spell. But it does not treat the basic problem, any more than did the 8.75 per cent devaluation in December, 1971.

The basic problem is that this country is sending more dollars overseas in purchases of foreign goods than it is receiving back in the form of purchases of American goods by foreigners, or by foreign investment in U. S. businesses.

From a small but ominous cloud on the horizon in 1971, the import- export imbalance mushroomed into a deficit of $6.4 billion last year. By comparison. Japan recorded a $9- billion surplus, $4 billion of it accounted for by exports to the United States alone.

The devaluation of the dollar will go far toward wiping out the projected trade imbalance for 1973 by making U. S. products both more attractive abroad and more competitive with foreign imports in this country.

To the extent that it discourages American tourists from traveling and spending abroad, because their dollars no longer go as far in terms of foreign currencies, and to the extent that it encourages foreigners to come here for the opposite reason, this will also help.

Over the longer range, moves charted by the administration to encourage other countries to relax discriminatory barriers against American exports will place us on a more equal competitive footing with them and help insure that we do not have another crisis in another year.

One of these moves is the use of selective tariffs against those trading partners employ the same tactics against us. But this must not be permitted to get out of hand. It could ultimately be disastrous if the growing protectionist sentiment in Congress were to be translated into the kind of economic isolationism which contributed so much to the worldwide depression of the 1930s.

The name of the game is still competition.

Even though the dollar has now assumed a more realistic relationship with other currencies, and even if all trade barriers are eventually removed, the American worker will still be up against stiff competition - the industrious Japanese the efficient Germans, all the other countries that are overtaking the technological lead enjoyed by the United States since World War II.

But speaking of technology, there is another cloud on the horizon. This is the rising tide of U. S. imports of Middle East oil.

One forecast is that we may be importing something like $30 billion worth of foreign petroleum by 1980, a figure that makes 1972's trade deficit of $6.4 billion look like peanuts.

The oil - exporting countries are already accumulating vast reserves of dollars, and given the continuing political instability of that part of the world, these reserves could become a powerful lever for mischief.

Not foreign cameras or foreign cars but our unslackening thirst for oil may well consitute the real crisis facing this nation in the years ahead.

An outstanding leader in advertising once defined good advertising this way:

AIMS to inform the consumer and helps him to buy more intelligently.

TELLS the truth, avoids misstatement of facts as well as possiblee deception through implication or omission. It makes no claims which cannot be met in full and without further qualification. It uses only testimonials of competent witnesses.

CONFORMS to the generally accepted standards of good taste. Good advertising seeks public acceptance on the basis of the merits of the product or service advertised rather than by the disparagement of competing goods. Good advertising tries to avoid practices that are offensive or annoying.

RECOGNIZES both its economic responsibility to help reduce distribution costs and its social responsibility in serving the public interest.

These are the goals we strive to attain with each and every advertisement which is published in our newspaper.

ONLY ONE GRADE

An editorial in the Arizona Republic helps bring misconceptions about medical costs into perspective. The editorial comments, "If a doctor's charge for an office visit seems to be more now than formerly, it's not because he is greedy, but because his costs have gone up, too. He has to pay more for office rent, insurance, professional and clerical office help, travel to and from medical meetings, subscriptions to professional journals and the purchase of medical books in order to keep pace with the rapid advances of medicine."

This is but part of the cost picture in the health care field. The Republic describes the tremendous expenditures of pharmaceutical companies for research and soaring labor costs in hospitals. Then there is the fantastically expensive and sophisticated new equipment which must be purchased so that doctors can give patients the best of modern technology.

When it comes to economics -- making both ends meet -- the business of medicine enjoys no privileges. It is like any other business. The dollars must be there to pay the bills if doctors are to meet the needs of their customers -- in this case their patients. There is, however, one distinction. Many businesses can shave the quality of their products to save money and still keep going. There is no such escape for a physician or a hospital. There is only one grade of product for a doctor -- either in service or equipment – the best, and the best is always expensive.

CAPABILITY TAKEN FOR GRANTED

Generally speaking, the attitude of many people toward the investor - owned electric industry is not one of can it meet power demands but one of shoud it be permitted to do so. The capability of the industry is taken for granted. Where the billions of dollars are to come from to build vitally- needed facilities appears to be of minor concern to everyone -- that is -- except the utility industry. The latter must think of the practical side of power generation as well as the aesthetic or ecological.

The chief executive of one large electric company disclosed that, "Projections show that investor - owned electric utilities will spend more than $72 billion in their 1971-1976 construction programs, compared with the $40.8 billion spent in theprior six years, an increase of over 75 per cent." In order to provide these funds, the executive says, the industry will have to raise $12 billion through sale of common stock, $9 billion through preferred stock and $26 billion through bonds. If the industry is to do this, its earnings must be sufficient to make its securities attractive to the public.

Every dollar of an investor - owned utility company's capital depends upon voluntary investment from the earnings and savings of private citizens. Those citizens must be convinced that the industry has a future, that its prospect for paying a fair return on the money it takes from investors is good. Nowwithstanding all the glib talk about "permitting" electric companies to build power plants, the hard truth is we will be lucky as a nation if the money is available to build all of the plants that will be demanded by the public in the years immediately ahead.

SECURITY RISKS RUN FREE IN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

In the long drawn- out aftermath of the tumult over "McCarthyism" almost twenty years ago, and particularly since the present administration's shift of policy toward accommodation with the Communist countries, the loyalty and security program for Federal employees has all but collapsed.

According to Congressman Richard Ichord of Missouri, chairman of the House Internal Security Committee, "at least 95 percent of the government's people have not been checked, are not reviewed, and can roam free through much of the nation's critically classified material."

The most startling recent case was that of Charles Tuller, formerly employed by the Office of Minority Business Enterprise in the Commerce Department. While still a Commerce employee, Tuller openly preached violent revolution and finally put his theories into practice. He killed a bank guard, an airport attendant and hijacked a plane to Cuba. He never had a security check until long after he was employed. When some evidence of his revolutionary views and activities did finally come to light, the Civil Service Commission found it impossible to have him fired under existing statutes.

To correct this situation, Congressman Ichord has introduced the Constitutional Oath Support Act. If passed into law, this would bar Federal employment to anyone who advocates the unlawful use of force. A bipartisan five-man Federal Employment Security and Appeals Commission would be set up to enforce it. This bill deserves the full support of every sound- thinking citizen. HLH

Inside Labor

Red Workers Rebellion: Brezhnev and Ex- Secret Police Chief Warn Soviet Labor: Produce or Else

WASHINGTON— Though the gags of Soviet Communist party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev seemed straight from Bob Hope and his antics were early Jerry Lewis, Brezhnev's airiness was as synthetic as aerosol whipped cream. There are documents, some in counterintelligence fields, some in constantly updated research archives and some in the hands of American labor leaders, which disclose bitter labor unrest, actual factory rebillions and industrial chaos throughout the Soviets' production system.

Thus there is more than hunger reported in the Soviet Union. Working people everywhere are uptight. There is widespread sabotage, drunkeness, absenteeism, loafing and in- plant thievery.

The socialist assembly line just is not working.

There is documentary evidence--- which more romantic journalists would dub CIA information--- that both Secretary Brezhnev and former secret police (KGB) chief Alexander Shelepin, now chairman of the All- Union Central Council of Trade Unions, personally have moved in to whip Russian workers into productivity.

It was Brezhnev himself who took the podium at the March 1972 Soviet "Trade Union's" 15th Congress in Moscow to "exhort" the "delegates."

He warned that the Ninth Five- Year Economic Plan would fail unless there was a speedup of the U.S.S.R. industrial machine.

He told them bluntly there would have to be stricter enforcement of labor discipline; wider use of material and moral incentives to increase production; greater promotion by unions of "socialist competion in production" among workers; and speedier introduction of new technology into the Red industrialism.

And then he gave the convention, which now meets every five years, the Order of Lenin.

Comrade Shelepin, who is as cruelly anti- Semitic as he is anti- Zionist, told the closed sessions of the labor congress that there must now come the full use of labor, materials, equipment and technicians. There must be, said he, the inculcation in workers of the "Communist attitude towards work" so as to increase labor productivity and to fulfill production plans.

One report states that this former KGB chief "exhorted" the unions "to continue to educate the trade union aktiv," which are cadres of unpaid "volunteer workers." In other words, desperately needed conscripted labor.

And all the statistical data seeping out of the U.S.S.R. now shows that these who are "paid" for their labor aren't much above a starvation wage scale. With prices, especially in food, up some 80 per cent above the 1961 level, wages have been cemented down. Leaflets distributed by angry workers report the average wage at 100 rubles a month.

The value of a ruble depends on where you get it. New York financial circles quote it as anywhere from 38 to 40 cents. Official bank circles quote it at $1.40. Soviet agencies themselves put it at anywhere from 75 cents to $1.00. Thus no matter how you slice it, the Russian worker can't eat much on it.

An AFL— CIO study quotes the average Soviet office and factory worker wage at $157 a month. So the income, before taxes in a heavily inflated land, where the ruble has far less to buy and can buy far less than one can with the dollar, is an average of anywhere from $10 to $40 a week.

Reports flood out of the U.S.S.R. on actual hunger. Deprivation means anger. Proletarian wrath translates itself into resistance. Soviet intellectuals, Jews yearning for the promised land, and young people weary despite their youth of creeping cultural death are not the only forces lashing back at the authorities.

Reliable documents show there has been action and counteraction on the labor front, strikes and repression. Strike- call leaflets aren't uncommon. To quote one such underground pamphlet, there have been stoppages in Leningrad, Moscow, Novocherkasak, Temir Tau and Cherdyn.

"Our people are rising to fight for their rights," says this throwaway. "Strikes and demonstrations are taking place. . .Many of our scientists and writers are protesting against the deprivation of rights of their people. You should fight too. Demand political freedoms, the lowering of prices, an increase in wages (and) the lowering of incomes of the Kremlin powerholders."

The rebellious workers protest what they describe as the luxurious living of the Kremlin hierarchy-- several thousand rubles a month salaries, special vacation resorts and hospitals, out- of- town villas, big cars, special allowances, special foods, and huge staffs.

Finally this has broken into the open. And the industrialism has broken down. The Soviet Union is deeply wounded. And Secretary Brezhnev didn't visit America for bandaids. Handouts, based on low interest loans, rather.

He came out of weakness, not fraternity.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Nixon's 'Stop Wallace' Plot

WASHINGTON— To eliminate George Wallace as a threat to President Nixon's re-election, the White House not only smuggled $400,000 in cash to his political rivals in Alabama but also brought pressure on him through a tax investigation of his brother.

Long before the 1972 election, the President knew from his secret polling that Wallace at the head of a third-party ticket would drain votes from him. The polls showed as many as four out of five Wallace voters otherwise favored Nixon. The White House, therefore, wanted to stop Wallace from running for President as an independent.

Both the secret polling and the stop- Wallace strategy were directed by the President's former chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman. So secretive were the moves against Wallace that Haldeman didn't even confide in his brother- in- law, who served as a go- between.

The White House strategy in 1970 was to block Wallace from winning back the governorship of Alabama. This would have deprived him of a power base and would have reduced his ability to campaign for the presidency in 1972.

Kalmbach Funds

Haldeman, therefore, arranged to sneak $400,000 to Wallace's rivals during the 1970 Alabama primary. The money was siphoned from surplus campaign funds in the custody of the President's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach.

Mysterious arrangements were made for Kalmbach to fly across country and hand over the first $100,000 to a stranger at New York City's Sherry-Netherland Hotel. Not long afterward, Haldeman's brother-in- law, France Raine, delivered another $200,000 presumably to the same mystery man at the Sherry- Netherland. A similar tryst was arranged at Los Angeles' Bank of California where Kalmbach turned over the final $100,000.

Neither Kalmbach nor Raine would comment on the strange transactions. Sources close to the investigation told us, however, that both men followed blind instructions. They were never told that the money would be used against Wallace, nor did they learn the identity of the bagman.

We also have been unable to identify the mystery man. From White House sources, we have established only that Haldeman's Man Friday, Larry Higby, was in touch with former Postmaster General Winton "Red" Blount about channeling anti- Wallace money into Alabama's 1970 Democratic primary. Blount couldn't be reached for comment.

Brother Gerald

At the same time that Haldeman sluiced $400,000 into the campaign against Wallace, he also requested a rundown from the Justice Department of its tax case against Wallace's close associates, including his brother Gerald.

The Justice Department sent back a confidential progress report to the White House. According to this document, the Internal Revenue Service's audit division had found that Gerald Wallace allegedly had omitted legal- fee income from his tax returns in 1967 and 1968.

The charge was that the Wallace brothers' law firm was used in funneling political kickbacks and that Gerald failed to report all the income that came to him through the law firm. After deducting large losses from his cattle farm, he reported a total taxable income of $109,944 in 1967 and $65,980 in 1968.

The Justice Department report added that, on January 20, 1970, the case was referred to Internal Revenue's crack intelligence division, which handles criminal investigations. A group of agents from various Southern offices was immediately assembled in Alabama.

Since we had exposed the kickback schemes which led to the tax investigation, details from the progress report were leaked circuitously to us. I sent my associate Brit Hume to Alabama to double- check the facts and to discuss the tax investigation with Gerald Wallace.

After George

"They have got 47 agents on me right now," Gerald said bitterly. "You all are trying to beat George Wallace. You're not interested in my tax returns." He added that federal agents had been after him "as long as George has been cussin' federal judges and most especially since he scared the hell out of Nixon and Humphrey."

We ran the tax story, which got a big play in Alabama. In the subsequent primary, George Wallace had a close call. He nosed out ex- Gov. Albert Brewer by a narrow 51.5 per cent of the vote.

Thereafter, the White House changed its strategy and sought to persuade Wallace to enter the 1972 presidential sweepstakes as a Democrat rather than an independent.

In May 1971, President Nixon visited Alabama and invited Wallace to ride with him on a flight from Mobile to Birmingham. No one will tell us what the two men said to each other during the plane ride. The subsequent events, therefore, may be merely coincidental.

But not long afterward, the tax case against Gerald Wallace was dropped and George Wallace announced he would run for President as a Democrat, not as an independent.

R.I.P. SACB

It is ironic, to say the least, that Richard M. Nixon should preside over the liquidation of a federal agency he helped to create while serving as a member of Congress. But when the Subversive Activities Control Board (SACB) closes up shop on Saturday, June 30, it will do so as a casualty of President Nixon's fiscal 1974 budget. The SACB will have few mourners. Crippled by court- imposed restrictions on its authority, the board has held few public hearings in the past decade. Nevertheless, its five presidentially appointed members each earn $36,000 a year.

The Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950, passed over President Truman's veto, was the brainchild of Rep. Richard M. Nixon (R Calif.) and Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R S.D.). The following year, SACB set out to expose Communists and their organizations through hearings. It concluded that the Communist Party U.S.A. was a Communist - action group under foreign domination and ordered it to register as such with the Justice Department. But the party appealed the order, and in 1965 the Supreme Court ruled in the party's favor. Other court rulings vacating registration orders followed.

No other agency will assume SACB's functions after June 30. But the board believes it has accomplished something. Communist Party U.S.A. membership dropped from 52,000 in 1951 to 9,000 in 1961, an SACB spokesman told Editorial Research Reports. In the years since the 1965 Supreme Court decision, party membership has risen to between 14,000 and 15,000. In addition, the spokesman said, 20 of 23 Communist- front organizations discredited by the SACB have folded.

Efforts to reincarnate SACB have met with little response. A bill introduced in 1971 by Reps. Richard H. Ichord (D Mo.) and Richardson Pryor (D N.C.) would have required federal job applicants to take loyalty oaths. The measurewas defeated by voice vote. Ichord has come back with another bill to revamp the federal loyalty- security system and to create a Federal Employee Security and Appeals Commission. But support for these measures has been lukewarm even on the part of SACB supporters, and opponents contend that there is no constitutional basis for such loyalty programs.

Sudden, explosive increases in wholesale prices recently demonstrated one of the greatest dangers of price and wage control which many have warned against from the beginning. They are merely a shield behind which the basic force of inflation (excessive governmental deficit spending) continues to build up.

Too many politicians feel safe in advocating bigger and better vote- getting handouts, and taxpayers tend to believe the double- talk about inflation having been brought under "control." Then suddenly, under the pressure of new spending records, we have a dollar crisis, and living costs again take off for the stratosphere. Each time wage and price controls are applied, it is like tying down a safety valve on a steam boiler while continuing to stoke the furnace.

So far, the Nixon Administration seems determined to curb government spending if we are to succeed in stemming inflation. But it is up to the taxpayers and to all citizens to recognize and judge the performance of their elected representatives in Congress, state legislatures and even on the local levels accordingly.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) "What am I going to do when I retire?"

This question stirs a feeling akin to panic in many Americans as they near the end of their time in harness.

Most of us complain now and then about how routine our lives are, but as retirement looms we begin to look upon that routine as a kind of sanctuary. We want to cling to it. It is our liferaft.

Survivors agree that the best way to minimize retirement panic is to prepare for it ahead of the event by making constructive plans on where you will live and how you will spend your time.

Somehow I have the feeling this advice falls a little short. It seems to me that it is as important to decide what you're not going to do after retirement as it is to decide what you will do.

The list is purely tentative, so far, but at the moment here are a few things I am determined not to do:

Go to pot. Cigars are good enough to me.

Develop a hobby. What is the use of collecting things after 65? Your heirs only throw it out later as trash.

Join a Golden Years Club immediately. I don't feel like jumping into a sardine canful of old folks the very day I retire. Later maybe.

Learn to play bridge or chess. Most of the people you meet who make a ritual of games are bores or small-time card sharps.

Haunt a golf course. I'd rather work every day than have to play golf every day.

Marry a rich widow. Why go to hell so soon? There is no worse hell than living off a wealthy woman's alms — even if you're 80.

What are the things a fellow can do after retiring that will enable him to lead a more contented life? Here are a few things on my list of things to do:

Become more crotchety. An old man without crotchets is as dull as a bowlful of tapioca pudding at an orgy.

Take a trip or two on a tramp steamer.

See Africa from stem to stern.

Learn a foreign language in a place where they speak it.

Never visit a dentist again.

Make a bonfire of my 25 books on dieting.

Run off with a red-haired nurse or waitress even if it keeps me broke the rest of my life buying her hair dye.

Where the billions of dollars are to come from to build vitally- needed facilities appears to be of minor concern to everyone -- that is -- except the utility industry. The latter must think of the practical side of power generation as well as the aesthetic or ecological.

The chief executive of one large electric company disclosed that, "Projections show that investor - owned electric utilities will spend more than $72 billion in their 1971-1976 construction programs, compared with the $40.8 billion spent in theprior six years, an increase of over 75 per cent." In order to provide these funds, the executive says, the industry will have to raise $12 billion through sale of common stock, $9 billion through preferred stock and $26 billion through bonds. If the industry is to do this, its earnings must be sufficient to make its securities attractive to the public.

Every dollar of an investor - owned utility company's capital depends upon voluntary investment from the earnings and savings of private citizens. Those citizens must be convinced that the industry has a future, that its prospect for paying a fair return on the money it takes from investors is good. Nowwithstanding all the glib talk about "permitting" electric companies to build power plants, the hard truth is we will be lucky as a nation if the money is available to build all of the plants that will be demanded by the public in the years immediately ahead.

SECURITY RISKS RUN FREE IN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

In the long drawn- out aftermath of the tumult over "McCarthyism" almost twenty years ago, and particularly since the present administration's shift of policy toward accommodation with the Communist countries, the loyalty and security program for Federal employees has all but collapsed.

According to Congressman Richard Ichord of Missouri, chairman of the House Internal Security Committee, "at least 95 percent of the government's people have not been checked, are not reviewed, and can roam free through much of the nation's critically classified material."

The most startling recent case was that of Charles Tuller, formerly employed by the Office of Minority Business Enterprise in the Commerce Department. While still a Commerce employee, Tuller openly preached violent revolution and finally put his theories into practice. He killed a bank guard, an airport attendant and hijacked a plane to Cuba. He never had a security check until long after he was employed. When some evidence of his revolutionary views and activities did finally come to light, the Civil Service Commission found it impossible to have him fired under existing statutes.

To correct this situation, Congressman Ichord has introduced the Constitutional Oath Support Act. If passed into law, this would bar Federal employment to anyone who advocates the unlawful use of force. A bipartisan five-man Federal Employment Security and Appeals Commission would be set up to enforce it. This bill deserves the full support of every sound- thinking citizen. HLH

Red Workers Rebellion: Brezhnev and Ex- Secret Police Chief Warn Soviet Labor: Produce or Else

WASHINGTON— Though the gags of Soviet Communist party First Secretary Leonid Brezhnev seemed straight from Bob Hope and his antics were early Jerry Lewis, Brezhnev's airiness was as synthetic as aerosol whipped cream. There are documents, some in counterintelligence fields, some in constantly updated research archives and some in the hands of American labor leaders, which disclose bitter labor unrest, actual factory rebillions and industrial chaos throughout the Soviets' production system.

Thus there is more than hunger reported in the Soviet Union. Working people everywhere are uptight. There is widespread sabotage, drunkeness, absenteeism, loafing and in- plant thievery.

The socialist assembly line just is not working.

There is documentary evidence--- which more romantic journalists would dub CIA information--- that both Secretary Brezhnev and former secret police (KGB) chief Alexander Shelepin, now chairman of the All- Union Central Council of Trade Unions, personally have moved in to whip Russian workers into productivity.

He warned that the Ninth Five- Year Economic Plan would fail unless there was a speedup of the U.S.S.R. industrial machine.

He told them bluntly there would have to be stricter enforcement of labor discipline; wider use of material and moral incentives to increase production; greater promotion by unions of "socialist competion in production" among workers; and speedier introduction of new technology into the Red industrialism.

And then he gave the convention, which now meets every five years, the Order of Lenin.

Comrade Shelepin, who is as cruelly anti- Semitic as he is anti- Zionist, told the closed sessions of the labor congress that there must now come the full use of labor, materials, equipment and technicians. There must be, said he, the inculcation in workers of the "Communist attitude towards work" so as to increase labor productivity and to fulfill production plans.

One report states that this former KGB chief "exhorted" the unions "to continue to educate the trade union aktiv," which are cadres of unpaid "volunteer workers." In other words, desperately needed conscripted labor.

And all the statistical data seeping out of the U.S.S.R. now shows that these who are "paid" for their labor aren't much above a starvation wage scale. With prices, especially in food, up some 80 per cent above the 1961 level, wages have been cemented down. Leaflets distributed by angry workers report the average wage at 100 rubles a month.

The value of a ruble depends on where you get it. New York financial circles quote it as anywhere from 38 to 40 cents. Official bank circles quote it at $1.40. Soviet agencies themselves put it at anywhere from 75 cents to $1.00. Thus no matter how you slice it, the Russian worker can't eat much on it.

An AFL— CIO study quotes the average Soviet office and factory worker wage at $157 a month. So the income, before taxes in a heavily inflated land, where the ruble has far less to buy and can buy far less than one can with the dollar, is an average of anywhere from $10 to $40 a week.

Reports flood out of the U.S.S.R. on actual hunger. Deprivation means anger. Proletarian wrath translates itself into resistance. Soviet intellectuals, Jews yearning for the promised land, and young people weary despite their youth of creeping cultural death are not the only forces lashing back at the authorities.

Reliable documents show there has been action and counteraction on the labor front, strikes and repression. Strike- call leaflets aren't uncommon. To quote one such underground pamphlet, there have been stoppages in Leningrad, Moscow, Novocherkasak, Temir Tau and Cherdyn.

"Our people are rising to fight for their rights," says this throwaway. "Strikes and demonstrations are taking place. . .Many of our scientists and writers are protesting against the deprivation of rights of their people. You should fight too. Demand political freedoms, the lowering of prices, an increase in wages (and) the lowering of incomes of the Kremlin powerholders."

The rebellious workers protest what they describe as the luxurious living of the Kremlin hierarchy-- several thousand rubles a month salaries, special vacation resorts and hospitals, out- of- town villas, big cars, special allowances, special foods, and huge staffs.

Finally this has broken into the open. And the industrialism has broken down. The Soviet Union is deeply wounded. And Secretary Brezhnev didn't visit America for bandaids. Handouts, based on low interest loans, rather.

He came out of weakness, not fraternity.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Nixon's 'Stop Wallace' Plot

WASHINGTON— To eliminate George Wallace as a threat to President Nixon's re-election, the White House not only smuggled $400,000 in cash to his political rivals in Alabama but also brought pressure on him through a tax investigation of his brother.

Long before the 1972 election, the President knew from his secret polling that Wallace at the head of a third-party ticket would drain votes from him. The polls showed as many as four out of five Wallace voters otherwise favored Nixon. The White House, therefore, wanted to stop Wallace from running for President as an independent.

Both the secret polling and the stop- Wallace strategy were directed by the President's former chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman. So secretive were the moves against Wallace that Haldeman didn't even confide in his brother- in- law, who served as a go- between.

The White House strategy in 1970 was to block Wallace from winning back the governorship of Alabama. This would have deprived him of a power base and would have reduced his ability to campaign for the presidency in 1972.

Kalmbach Funds

Haldeman, therefore, arranged to sneak $400,000 to Wallace's rivals during the 1970 Alabama primary. The money was siphoned from surplus campaign funds in the custody of the President's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach.

Mysterious arrangements were made for Kalmbach to fly across country and hand over the first $100,000 to a stranger at New York City's Sherry-Netherland Hotel. Not long afterward, Haldeman's brother-in- law, France Raine, delivered another $200,000 presumably to the same mystery man at the Sherry- Netherland. A similar tryst was arranged at Los Angeles' Bank of California where Kalmbach turned over the final $100,000.

Neither Kalmbach nor Raine would comment on the strange transactions. Sources close to the investigation told us, however, that both men followed blind instructions. They were never told that the money would be used against Wallace, nor did they learn the identity of the bagman.

We also have been unable to identify the mystery man. From White House sources, we have established only that Haldeman's Man Friday, Larry Higby, was in touch with former Postmaster General Winton "Red" Blount about channeling anti- Wallace money into Alabama's 1970 Democratic primary. Blount couldn't be reached for comment.

Brother Gerald

At the same time that Haldeman sluiced $400,000 into the campaign against Wallace, he also requested a rundown from the Justice Department of its tax case against Wallace's close associates, including his brother Gerald.

The Justice Department sent back a confidential progress report to the White House. According to this document, the Internal Revenue Service's audit division had found that Gerald Wallace allegedly had omitted legal- fee income from his tax returns in 1967 and 1968.

The charge was that the Wallace brothers' law firm was used in funneling political kickbacks and that Gerald failed to report all the income that came to him through the law firm. After deducting large losses from his cattle farm, he reported a total taxable income of $109,944 in 1967 and $65,980 in 1968.

The Justice Department report added that, on January 20, 1970, the case was referred to Internal Revenue's crack intelligence division, which handles criminal investigations. A group of agents from various Southern offices was immediately assembled in Alabama.

Since we had exposed the kickback schemes which led to the tax investigation, details from the progress report were leaked circuitously to us. I sent my associate Brit Hume to Alabama to double- check the facts and to discuss the tax investigation with Gerald Wallace.

After George

"They have got 47 agents on me right now," Gerald said bitterly. "You all are trying to beat George Wallace. You're not interested in my tax returns." He added that federal agents had been after him "as long as George has been cussin' federal judges and most especially since he scared the hell out of Nixon and Humphrey."

We ran the tax story, which got a big play in Alabama. In the subsequent primary, George Wallace had a close call. He nosed out ex- Gov. Albert Brewer by a narrow 51.5 per cent of the vote.

Thereafter, the White House changed its strategy and sought to persuade Wallace to enter the 1972 presidential sweepstakes as a Democrat rather than an independent.

In May 1971, President Nixon visited Alabama and invited Wallace to ride with him on a flight from Mobile to Birmingham. No one will tell us what the two men said to each other during the plane ride. The subsequent events, therefore, may be merely coincidental.

But not long afterward, the tax case against Gerald Wallace was dropped and George Wallace announced he would run for President as a Democrat, not as an independent.

Picket lines dropped as 'good will' gesture

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association removed its pickets from the premises of Ozark Air Lines late Wednesday as the 560-member union prepared to vote today and Friday on a tentative settlement in the 71-day strike.

Samuel Smith, president of AMFA Local 24 here, said the picket lines were dropped "as a gesture of good will" pending the outcome of balloting on the proposed agreement.

Negotiators reached the tentative pact late Tuesday during talks in Washington with federal mediators. Details of the agreement will not be made public until the union has voted on it.

Smith said results of union balloting, to be held in St. Louis and Chicago, can be expected late Friday or early Saturday, but he refused to speculate on the outcome.

Some 55 ballots have been mailed to mechanics in outlying areas, who have notified the union they will not be able to attend the ratification meetings, Smith said.

He noted, however, that those absentee ballots will have little effect on the outcome of the voting unless the margin is close in the big St. Louis and Chicago Locals.

"But I don't believe that will be the case," theunion leader said.

As the AMFA prepared for the ratification meetings, Ozark filed a motion Wednesday for a continuance in an appellate hearing on a U.S. District Court injunction issued Monday.

The hearing, originally set for today in Colorado Springs, Colo., was on an appeal of the lower court order by the Air Line Pilots Association. The injunction, which prohibited the pilots association from forcing its members to honor AMFA picket lines, was stayed by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals only hours after it was issued.

Bond trims University bills

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond wielded a heavy pencil when he got to the University of Missouri money bills Wednesday.

The governor cut $8 million from the university's capital improvements budget and $750,000 from its $104 million operations budget. Last year, the university spent $97 million in state funds.

The $750,000 would have gone into a regional medical program. Bond said the money was appropriated with the understanding that federal aid would be discontinued, but since the President signed a one-year extension for the program, state funds were no longer needed.

He trimmed $6 million, leaving $400,000 in planning money, for a veterinary medicine complex at the Columbia campus.

The money would have come from federal revenue sharing funds on a matching basis with other federal funds, Bond said, and federal revenue sharing funds can't be used that way. The total cost of the building would be $18 million.

He also sliced $2 million for an administration building at the St. Louis campus because it "has a lower priority than other needed facilities" at the St. Louis campus.

"The most important need for the University of Missouri at St. Louis is the general services building, and the university cannot take on any more projects until the general serv ices building is constructed," Bond said.

All-American breakfast should start each day

PULLMAN, Wash. — Remember those "all-American breakfasts" you used to hear about on radio?

"Start your day with milk, fruit and cereal," the man would say.

Well, the man was right. Scientists say so.

"Blending foods like milk and cereal is a better way to give us the nutrients we need than trying to fortify the milk," Dr. D.M. Graham, chairman of the University of Missouri - Columbia's Department of Food Science and Nutrition said Thursday.

"The proteins of milk combine with the proteins of cereal to supply excellent, complete protein for humans. Cereal alone is incomplete and requires supplementation and fortification from another source."

How about adding sugar for taste? That's okay, said Grahm, but adding some fruit would be better.

"Sugar provides calories -- energy. But milk plus a bran or wheat cereal and fruit gives us bulk, plus nutrition."

Graham told scientists at the 68th annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association at Washington State University that bulk is one of the biggest deficiencies in the American diet. He said people should eat more fruits and vegetables, particularly things like celery stalks, carrot sticks, lettuce, etc.

He noted that food scientists have been making progress in improving American diets by fortifying certain foods. Best examples are fortification of milk with Vitamin D and other milk products with Vitamin A.

The fortification effort has been stimulated by a co-ordinated dairy research program started by Dairy Research, Inc., and further stimulated by nutritional labeling regulations.

"Fortification costs to the consumer are minimal," said Graham. "The cost of vitamins and minerals are low. The main cost is in the assay needed to see that the levels are the same as stated on the label."

Graham said that fortified milk is one of the best ways to give consumers the nutrients they need.

Ann Landers

Manicurist says 'gentlemen' talk

Dear Ann Landers: I am an 18- year- old girl who lives at home and commutes to college. My father believes whatever Ann Landers says is LAW.

This morning the phone rang. I was asleep. It kept ringing and ringing. No one answered it until finally I pulled my self out of bed and answered it myself. Then I saw my dad sitting at the table, less than ten feet from the phone, enjoying the newspaper and drinking coffee. I asked, "Don't you believe in answering the phone when it rings?" He replied, "Not since Ann Landers said you don't have to answer the phone if you don't feel like it."

Did you REALLY say that? If so, it is the rudest, most inconsiderate, most anti- social and utterly sick thing I have ever heard of in my life. If you said it, I hope you will retract it in deference to the future sanity of our household.--- Sparks A Flying

Dear Sparky: I did say a person need not answer the phone if he doesn't feel like it. But that advice was given in a completely different context. For example, many people complain about being trapped on the phone by long- winded friends and relatives who call at inconvenient times. THAT advice is for THEM In a household such as yours, however, the person nearest the phone should answer it as a favor to other members of the family.

Dear Ann Landers: Your remark in response to "Just Crushed," that "a gentleman never tells"--- made me laugh. How naive can you get?

I've held hands with at least 10,000 men in the past 20 years. You see, I'm a manicurist--- and I could write a book about the things I've heard in the barber shops of Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Omaha.

Do you know the favorite topic of most men? WOMEN. Or to be more specific, "women I have known." (And they use the word "known" in the Biblical sense.) Naturally they never talk about their failures--- only their conquests. And the dirty dogs name names and places, with no thought of who might be under the towels in the next chair. It could be the lady's husband for all they know.

So please knock off that sweet talk that "a gentleman never tells." They tell plenty.--- Miss Clammy Hands Of The Midwest

Dear Miss: I refuse to retract a word of it. Those barbershop blabbermouths can hardly be called gentlemen.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a good job and I make a good salary. But the cost of living has me budgeted to the last nickel. Every cent means something.

I have to sound petty, but one of the girls I work with is driving me to the wall with her small "loans" which turn out to be gifts.

We frequently ride the same bus home from work. Twice in the last two weeks she has asked me to pay her fare. She is also a coffee mooch. She has asked me to bring her coffee from the cafeteria at least three times this month, and it's never just coffee--- it's always a few cookies, or a sweet roll or a piece of pound cake along with the java.

I hate to remind a person about 26c and 35c. It seems so petty. Yet---???? Please advise.--- Seeing Red

Dear Red: Memorize these five words and practice them in front of the mirror: "Sorry, I can't afford it."

The next time Minnie The Moocher puts the arm on you for anything, say, "Sorry, I can't afford it."

A no- nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage--- What To Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope.

Ann Landers

Manicurist says 'gentlemen' talk

Dear Ann Landers: I am an 18- year- old girl who lives at home and commutes to college. My father believes whatever Ann Landers says is LAW.

This morning the phone rang. I was asleep. It kept ringing and ringing. No one answered it until finally I pulled my self out of bed and answered it myself. Then I saw my dad sitting at the table, less than ten feet from the phone, enjoying the newspaper and drinking coffee. I asked, "Don't you believe in answering the phone when it rings?" He replied, "Not since Ann Landers said you don't have to answer the phone if you don't feel like it."

Did you REALLY say that? If so, it is the rudest, most inconsiderate, most anti- social and utterly sick thing I have ever heard of in my life. If you said it, I hope you will retract it in deference to the future sanity of our household.--- Sparks A Flying

Dear Sparky: I did say a person need not answer the phone if he doesn't feel like it. But that advice was given in a completely different context. For example, many people complain about being trapped on the phone by long- winded friends and relatives who call at inconvenient times. THAT advice is for THEM. In a household such as yours, however, the person nearest the phone should answer it as a favor to other members of the family.

Dear Ann Landers: Your remark in response to "Just Crushed," that "a gentleman never tells"--- made me laugh. How naive can you get?

I've held hands with at least 10,000 men in the past 20 years. You see, I'm a manicurist--- and I could write a book about the things I've heard in the barber shops of Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Omaha.

Do you know the favorite topic of most men? WOMEN. Or to be more specific, "women I have known." (And they use the word "known" in the Biblical sense.) Naturally they never talk about their failures--- only their conquests. And the dirty dogs name names and places, with no thought of who might be under the towels in the next chair. It could be the lady's husband for all they know.

So please knock off that sweet talk that "a gentleman never tells." They tell plenty.--- Miss Clammy Hands Of The Midwest

Dear Miss: I refuse to retract a word of it. Those barbershop blabbermouths can hardly be called gentlemen.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a good job and I make a good salary. But the cost of living has me budgeted to the last nickel. Every cent means something.

I have to sound petty, but one of the girls I work with is driving me to the wall with her small "loans" which turn out to be gifts.

We frequently ride the same bus home from work. Twice in the last two weeks she has asked me to pay her fare. She is also a coffee mooch. She has asked me to bring her coffee from the cafeteria at least three times this month, and it's never just coffee--- it's always a few cookies, or a sweet roll or a piece of pound cake along with the java.

I hate to remind a person about 26c and 35c. It seems so petty. Yet---???? Please advise.--- Seeing Red

Dear Red: Memorize these five words and practice them in front of the mirror: "Sorry, I can't afford it."

The next time Minnie The Moocher puts the arm on you for anything, say, "Sorry, I can't afford it."

A no- nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage--- What To Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope.

Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, director of the Scott County Welfare Department office, was tried before a jury of 125 of her employes and friends Saturday night at a retirement party given for her at Ramada Inn. She was charged with harassing and overworking her employes; they found her guilty. She is shown here with "Sheriff" Don Moxley. Mrs. Gipson joined the welfare department in 1953 as a case worker. Before that she had been a school teacher. She retires Friday. (Daily Standard Photo by Ron Porter)

In bill-signing flurry, 19 bills signed into law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill providing state subsidies for public hospitals which operate at a deficit has been vetoed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

In a bill-signing flurry Wednesday, Bond signed into law 19 bills, including the last of the appropriations bills for the $2 billion 1973-74 fiscal year budget, and a measure increasing the aid to dependent children by $5 per recipient. About 219,000 persons will be affected.

Of 244 bills sent to the governor, Bond has signed 139 and vetoed three.

Bond vetoed the hospital bill, he said, because it represents state aid to local governments without any controls and would not encourage efficiency.

The bill would have allowed the state to pay 10 per cent of the deficit per hospital. It would have benefited Jackson County hospitals by about $1 million a year. St. Louis city hospitals would have received about $2.2 million and St. Louis County Hospital, $400,000.

The total cost to the state would have been $4.4 million a year, to come from the federal revenue sharing trust fund. Auditing functions required under the bill would go beyond capabilities of the state auditor's office, Bond said.

The governor also vetoed a bill calling for publishing of annual supplements to the state's revised statutes and allowing the Legislative Research Committee to draft rules for bidding on printing of the supplements.

A recent attorney general's opinion said all state printing must be coordinated by the state procurement office and be put out for public bidding.

The aid to dependent children bill would make the payments $38 a month for the mother, $48 a month for the first child and $29 a month for each additional child.

Bond said Missouri ranks 45th in average payments under the program. The bill is expected to cost $11 million a year but was not funded in the session that ended June 15. Bond called for an emergency appropriation in the session beginning in January.

Other bills signed by Bond Wednesday would:

—Require state agencies to purchase recycled paper when it is available.

—Allow school districts to operate staggered terms for different groups of students and operate schools in the summer.

—Allow the Missouri Boat Commission to hire 45 new employes, 36 of whom will be patrolmen.

—Allow state grants for public water supply and sewer districts.

Bond said he had "strong reservations that the substantial increases in staff are warranted or will be justified," in connection with his signing of a bill giving the legislature a $400,000 increase, to $4.4 million, in yearly operating funds.

Bond noted the fiscal affairs committee had doubled its staff and its appropriations jumped from $134,941 to $345,558.

He also approved appropriations of $166.8 million for higher education, $53.6 million for capital improvements, $363.3 million for health and welfare, and $127.5 million for corrections and mental health.

The highe education budget will be $17.3 million higher than last year. Corrections and mental health went up $13.8 million, and health and welfare will decrease by $8.3 million.

Bond sliced $9.2 million off a capital improvements bill, including $6 million for a $6.4 million measure for a veterinary medicine complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Bond said the money, earmarked to come from federal revenue sharing, could not be used to match federal funds. He said $400,000 would be enough to allow the university to get the project under way.

Bond vetoed $2 million for an administration building at the University of Missouri-St. Louis campus, saying the campus should not take on any more projects until the general services building is completed. The bill includes $104,000 in planning money for the general services building.

He took $1 million off a $7.4 million expenditure for a juvenile treatment center at the St. Louis State Hospital, saying a re-evaluation indicates the projected cost was too high.

An expenditure of $80,000 for a physical therapy complex at the School for the Blind in St. Louis was axed but Bond left intact $91,000 for maintenance.

A tourist information center in Jackson County, costing $75,000, was eliminated on the grounds that the state has two information centers under construction, one near Joplin and one near St. Louis. Until the value of the centers is determined, Bond said, no more should be constructed.

He also took out $50,000 for an activities building at the State Correctional Center for Women at Tipton but $81,000 for repairs was left in the bill.

He eliminated $21,000 for tearing down cottages at the Boonville Training School for Boys, but left in $129,850 for repairs and $50,000 for construction of a maintenance building.

Bond took out $139,788 for replacement and remodeling of buildings at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, leaving a total of $610,621.

Left intact at the Cape Girardeau campus was $152,000 for rehabilitation of buildings and grounds and $139,788 for power plant revisions. Bond said the $139,788 for power plant revisions was mistakenly put in the larger figure for remodeling.

In the higher education bill, Bond vetoed $750,000 for the University of Missouri for a regional medical program on the grounds that the federal government will continue support of the program and sktate funds won't be needed.

Other cuts were $68,000 to the mental health division for a computer program in the office of the director and $119,560 for the Old Soldiers' Home at St. James, leaving a total of $879,204.

One of the larger building programs, $7.6 million for a new wing at the Ellis Fischel Cancer Hospital at Columbia, was signed into law.

Scientist says people should eat more fruits

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of the Department of Food Science and Nutrition at the University of Missouri-Columbia says the lack of bulk is the biggest deficiency in the average American's diet.

Dr. D. M. Graham told fellow scientists people should eat more fruit and vegetables, particularly things such as raw celery and carrot sticks.

Dr. Graham made his point in a paper for the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association, being held at Washington State University in Pullman, Wash.

The idea that one should start the day with milk, fruit and cereal got a warm endorsement from Graham. He said study has shown that a blending of the natural protein in milk and cereals is better for people than fortifying the milk or the cereal.

He also reported progress in efforts to fortify milk with iron, one of its major deficiencies. He predicted there is little chance that milk can ever be significantly fortified with vitamin C, but that is no problem for people who like orange juice and baked potatoes.

In bill-signing flurry, 19 bills signed into law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A bill providing state subsidies for public hospitals which operate at a deficit has been vetoed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond.

In a bill-signing flurry Wednesday, Bond signed into law 19 bills, including the last of the appropriations bills for the $2 billion 1973-74 fiscal year budget, and a measure increasing the aid to dependent children by $5 per recipient. About 219,000 persons will be affected.

Of 244 bills sent to the governor, Bond has signed 139 and vetoed three.

Bond vetoed the hospital bill, he said, because it represents state aid to local governments without any controls and would not encourage efficiency.

The bill would have allowed the state to pay 10 per cent of the deficit per hospital. It would have benefited Jackson County hospitals by about $1 million a year. St. Louis city hospitals would have received about $2.2 million and St. Louis County Hospital, $400,000.

The total cost to the state would have been $4.4 million a year, to come from the federal revenue sharing trust fund. Auditing functions required under the bill would go beyond capabilities of the state auditor's office, Bond said.

The governor also vetoed a bill calling for publishing of annual supplements to the state's revised statutes and allowing the Legislative Research Committee to draft rules for bidding on printing of the supplements.

A recent attorney general's opinion said all state printing must be coordinated by the state procurement office and be put out for public bidding.

The aid to dependent children bill would make the payments $38 a month for the mother, $48 a month for the first child and $29 a month for each additional child.

Bond said Missouri ranks 45th in average payments under the program. The bill is expected to cost $11 million a year but was not funded in the session that ended June 15. Bond called for an emergency appropriation in the session beginning in January.

Other bills signed by Bond Wednesday would:

—Require state agencies to purchase recycled paper when it is available.

—Allow school districts to operate staggered terms for different groups of students and operate schools in the summer.

—Allow the Missouri Boat Commission to hire 45 new employes, 36 of whom will be patrolmen.

—Allow state grants for public water supply and sewer districts.

Bond said he had "strong reservations that the substantial increases in staff are warranted or will be justified," in connection with his signing of a bill giving the legislature a $400,000 increase, to $4.4 million, in yearly operating funds.

Bond noted the fiscal affairs committee had doubled its staff and its appropriations jumped from $134,941 to $345,558.

He also approved appropriations of $166.8 million for higher education, $53.6 million for capital improvements, $363.3 million for health and welfare, and $127.5 million for corrections and mental health.

The highe education budget will be $17.3 million higher than last year. Corrections and mental health went up $13.8 million, and health and welfare will decrease by $8.3 million.

Bond sliced $9.2 million off a capital improvements bill, including $6 million for a $6.4 million measure for a veterinary medicine complex at the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Bond said the money, earmarked to come from federal revenue sharing, could not be used to match federal funds. He said $400,000 would be enough to allow the university to get the project under way.

Bond vetoed $2 million for an administration building at the University of Missouri-St. Louis campus, saying the campus should not take on any more projects until the general services building is completed. The bill includes $104,000 in planning money for the general services building.

He took $1 million off a $7.4 million expenditure for a juvenile treatment center at the St. Louis State Hospital, saying a re-evaluation indicates the projected cost was too high.

An expenditure of $80,000 for a physical therapy complex at the School for the Blind in St. Louis was axed but Bond left intact $91,000 for maintenance.

A tourist information center in Jackson County, costing $75,000, was eliminated on the grounds that the state has two information centers under construction, one near Joplin and one near St. Louis. Until the value of the centers is determined, Bond said, no more should be constructed.

He also took out $50,000 for an activities building at the State Correctional Center for Women at Tipton but $81,000 for repairs was left in the bill.

He eliminated $21,000 for tearing down cottages at the Boonville Training School for Boys, but left in $129,850 for repairs and $50,000 for construction of a maintenance building.

Bond took out $139,788 for replacement and remodeling of buildings at Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau, leaving a total of $610,621.

Left intact at the Cape Girardeau campus was $152,000 for rehabilitation of buildings and grounds and $139,788 for power plant revisions. Bond said the $139,788 for power plant revisions was mistakenly put in the larger figure for remodeling.

In the higher education bill, Bond vetoed $750,000 for the University of Missouri for a regional medical program on the grounds that the federal government will continue support of the program and sktate funds won't be needed.

Other cuts were $68,000 to the mental health division for a computer program in the office of the director and $119,560 for the Old Soldiers' Home at St. James, leaving a total of $879,204.

One of the larger building programs, $7.6 million for a new wing at the Ellis Fischel Cancer Hospital at Columbia, was signed into law.

Scientist says people should eat more fruits

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The chairman of the Department of Food Science and Nutrition at the University of Missouri-Columbia says the lack of bulk is the biggest deficiency in the average American's diet.

Dr. D. M. Graham told fellow scientists people should eat more fruit and vegetables, particularly things such as raw celery and carrot sticks.

Dr. Graham made his point in a paper for the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science Association, being held at Washington State University in Pullman, Wash.

The idea that one should start the day with milk, fruit and cereal got a warm endorsement from Graham. He said study has shown that a blending of the natural protein in milk and cereals is better for people than fortifying the milk or the cereal.

He also reported progress in efforts to fortify milk with iron, one of its major deficiencies. He predicted there is little chance that milk can ever be significantly fortified with vitamin C, but that is no problem for people who like orange juice and baked potatoes.

Senate approves Social Security cost-of-living increase

WASHINGTON AP — The Senate has approved a 5.6 per cent cost-of-living increase for persons on Social Security, a move that appears to have a good chance for House acceptance.

As adopted by the Senate 72 to 17, the higher Social Security payments would not result in increased payroll deductions.

If approved by the House, the increase would face an uncertain fate in the White House. Nixon administration administration officials have opposed the higher payments.

Managers of the measure said they would try to arrange a Senate-House conference today.

The Social Security hike was a rider, attached with many others, to a bill that would extend the present $465-billion national debt ceiling for 5 months.

This ceiling drops to $400 billion at midnight Saturday, unless the bill is enacted. The government could not meet its financial obligaions under the lower figure.

The Senate remained in session until 11 p.m. Wednesday taking 15 separate roll call votes to complete action on the debt limit measure.

Other riders would liberalize benefits for aged, blind and disabled persons on the welfare rolls.

Senate war critics trying to force stop-the-bombing issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appears headed toward giving President Nixon a choice between stopping the bombing and stopping federal paychecks.

Senate war critics Wednesday began immediate efforts to force the issue after Nixon's vetoed a bill that included a stop the-bombing amendment. The House upheld the veto.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., chief sponsor of the antibombing provision in the vetoed $3.4-billion supplementary money bill, immediately won its inclusion in a bill extending the federal debt ceiling, where its fate was uncertain.

The amendment also was included in a third bill, the continuing resolution to provide funding for federal agencies after Saturday night, when the current fiscal year ends. Congress has not approved regular appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, and government agencies need the continuing resolution if they are to have funds to operate.

The appropriations bill probably will come before the Senate Appropriations Committee today, and seems certain to reach the President, with the anti-bombing amendment, before the week ends.

As passed by the House Tuesday, the amendment bars funds, both already provided and those appropriated by the resolution, to be used for any U.S. combat activities in or over Cambodia or Laos or off the shores of Cambodia or Laos.

Unlike the vetoed supplemental money measure, the debt ceiling bill and continuing resolution must become law by midnight Saturday for the government to continue to meet its financial obligations.

With a majority of the Senate clearly determined at this point to insist on a halt in bombing, the choice for Nixon could come down to a choice between the continued bombing of Cambodia or funds for federal operations, warned Eagleton and Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield.

"If the President doesn't want to stop the bombing and wants instead to stop the government from functioning, that is the President's responsibility," Mansfield shouted.

The fate of the first vehicle for the anti-bombing amendment was never in doubt, despite a statement Tuesday by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., that Nixon might accept it.

E. Prairie superintendent and wife honored at dinner

EAST PRAIRIE — About 100 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Melton attended an appreciation and farewell dinner Tuesday night in the community building.

Melton, who resigned as superintendent of the East Prairie R-2 School District in March, has accepted the position as superintendent of the New Madrid County R-1 Enlarged School District for a two-year term, effective July 1. He has served as superintendent of the East Prairie district since 1964. Mrs. Melton, a first grade teacher in the R. A. Doyle School for a number of years, will teach this fall in the New Madrid district.

James Barnhill, master of ceremonies for Tuesday night's event, introduced Mrs. Pat Helms, who presented Mrs. Melton a gift on behalf of the Community Betterment Committee. Mrs. Melton has served as chairman of the Community Betterment Committee the past year.

She expressed her appreciation for the gift and the cooperation she has received from co-workers in Community Betterment and remarked, "I'll be in Jefferson City to see East Prairie take the grand prize, if the new superindendent of the New Madrid schools will let me take a couple of days off."

An appreciation gift from the community was presented to Melton by Hunt Wellborn.

Melton, who has served in the local school district as a teacher or in an administrative postion for 24 years, was in a jovial mood as he expressed his thanks to the group for their thoughtfulness, confidence in his ability and cooperation.

Piano selections were played by David Brumley and Marsha Bain during the dinner. Mark Hurt and Kevin Mainord, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Nancy Bird, each sang two numbers to provide the entertainment.

Embargo ordered high protein soybean exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration, alarmed at soaring livestock feed costs has ordered an immediate embargo on further exports of high-protein soybeans and other oilseed products.

"This is a drastic action," Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz told a news conference Wednesday. "It was not taken lightly."

Butz said, however, that the embargo—directed mainly at soybeans—would not reduce their exports greatly. He estimated that about 30 million bushels of soybeans probably would be saved by the embargo, a quantity he said might be worth $300 million at current prices.

One official said that a savings of 30 million bushels of soybeans represents less than a two weeks supply for U.S. users.

Sales to foreign markets from the 1972 soybean crop were roughly 450 million bushels.

The order was issued by Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent, who said that the embargo would last at least until new crops of soybeans and cottonseed, also covered, are harvested next fall.

Farmers, particularly poultry men, have complained that soybean meal, a prime ingredient in feed preparation, is so costly that they have had to cut back on production.

Cost of Living Council director John T. Dunlop called the embargo a move by the administration to put American consumers ahead of foreign trade.

George B. Watts, president of the National Broiler Council, told a reporter that the embargo effect might be slow in coming.

"We'll have to wait and see," Watts said. "It may provide relief, especially to those who are out of meal and can buy more if the price goes down. For those who have already stocked up, it could be another story."

The broiler chicken people want further relief, including exemptions from the price freeze to help offset high feed costs. Butz, answering reporters' questions, said the freeze is causing "a creeping paralysis" in the food industry.

However, Dent added quickly that the embargo on soybeans had "no relation" to the freeze and was taken strictly on the basis of reports that exports were rising much more rapidly than previously anticipated.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government expressed anger and concern over the embargo, but officials said the nation's supplies of the commodities are adequate for the immediate future.

"HEALTH TIPS"

A typical child born today can expect to live more than 10 years longer than a child born in 1930. We know that the average lifespan has been increasing. However, we can't understand this prison sentence given to a Frenchman by a Paris Court: Life plus 4 years!

Kelly promises to erase FBI political shadows

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clarence M. Kelley is taking command of the FBI with a promise to erase the political shadows hanging over it.

The new director says he would resign in protest before bending to political pressure.

"I can honestly say that I am non-political. I owe allegiance to no political party, leader or background. As director, I will make my own judgments and decisions," Kelley told a news conference Wednesday, shortly after the Senate voted 96 to 0 confirming his nomination.

After 12 years as police chief of Kansas City, Mo., Kelley, 61, is returning to the agency he served for 21 years under the late J. Edgar Hoover. He spoke of Hoover as his lifelong hero and promised to honor the "traditions of fidelity, bravery and integrity" he credited Hoover with molding into the FBI.

Since Hoover's death 14 months ago, the agency's independent image has been tarnished by the Watergate scandal. Acting Director L. Patrick Gray III resigned after disclosure that he destroyed materials taken from the safe of Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

Kelley, who shook up the Kansas City police department with technological innovations, said he will not hesitate to change FBI operations if he finds it necessary.

He said, too, that he will "try to be responsive to the public needs of disclosure" in some form of regular communications with newsmen.

Kelley defended the use of wiretaps as a "very beneficial" investigative tool when carried out according to law. Sometimes FBI agents must break into an office or a house to install a wiretap, he said.

"Under some circumstances, this might be construed as illegal entry," he said. "But it is not illegal entry."

He said he would never condone breaking and entering to obtain files or documents.

After the news conference, Kelley returned to Kansas City to wrap up loose ends before being sworn in as FBI chief. FBI spokesmen said they're waiting on the White House to decide when and where the swearing-in will take place.

Education council favors keeping low tuitions

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Council on Public Higher Education held its first general meeting Wednesday with 300 persons attending. A survey showed they favor keeping low tuitions at state universities, eliminating duplicative programs and allowing students to transfer credits easily from one school to another.

The 2-year-old voluntary group is made up of educators and citizens concerned with improving communication and cooperation among the 26 state supported institutions of higher learning. Public money is used to help finance the organization, through membership dues from the cooperating universities. Several university presidents were instrumental in forming COPHE.

Of the 271 responding to the survey, these results were reported:

—54 per cent opposed having a single governing board coordinate higher education, 36 per cent approved of it and 10 per cent were undecided.

—52 per cent opposed state financing of private universities while 36 per cent favored it and the remainder had no opinion.

—62 per cent were opposed to collective bargaining for faculty members while 26.5 per cent favored it and the rest were undecided.

—54 per cent were in favor of putting a percentage limit on the number of tenured teachers while 26 per cent opposed it and the rest were undecided.

The survey showed overwhelmingly support for allowing each institution to develop its own academic programs in accordance with the needs of its constituency and to develop continuing education programs for off-campus students.

Most of the respondents favored allowing faculty members to have more voice in deciding administrative, curriculum and student personnel policies. They favored giving the students similar decision-making power, except in the area of administration.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond told the group that when reorganization of state government occurs, the Commission on Higher Education will be superseded by a Coordinating Board of Higher Education.

He said the new board should have sufficient power to carry out its responsibilities.

"In this time of leveling off of student enrollments, we have an excellent opportunity to assess our higher education program offerings—unproductive programs and overly-duplicative programs should be weeded out—new programs should be requested and implemented with caution," Bond said.

The governor said the Commission on Higher Education is completing a study of unused space and the implications are that university space must be better utilized rather than building new buildings.

Brewery, union negotiators to meet

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Negotiators for the Anheuser-Busch brewery here and two striking unions were to meet today for the first time since the unions walked off the job Tuesday.

The session was called Wednesday by the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The St. Louis brewery, the largest in the country, was forced to halt operations when members of the Beer Bottlers Local 187 and Lab Technicians Local 262 walked off the job in a dispute over improvements in their retirement plans.

The strike has caused St. Louis's largest liquor store chain to begin rationing its stock of Anheuser-Busch products.

"We want to give everybody a chance to get a little bit while it lasts," said Eugene C. Weissman, president of the 9-0-5 chain. He said supplies at all his stores will be gone by early next week if the strike lasts.

The unions, which had been working under contracts that expired March 1, have demanded retirement program improvements to match similar improvements granted other brewery unions in recent negotiations.

The company has contended, however, that the other unions were granted the improvements, which call for five years full pay after retirement at age 60, because many of their jobs are being phased out by automation and modernization of plant equipment.

The strike has idled some 5,000 employes at the brewery.

Patrolmen must work on Fourth

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Col. Samuel S. Smith, Missouri Highway Patrol superintendent, said today he has canceled all days off for patrolmen during the July 4 holiday Wednesday.

Forty persons were killed in Missouri traffic accidents over the 102-hour July 4 holiday period last year.

The 30-hour traffic death count for the Independence Day holiday period this year begins at 6 p.m. Tuesday, July 3, and ends at midnight Wednesday, July 4.

MCSW urges ratification of ERA bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Commission on the Status of Women has reaffirmed its support of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U. S. Constitution and called for its ratification by the Missouri Legislature.

Resolutions to adopt the amendment were introduced in both houses of the legislature last session, but one was killed in the Senate Judiciary Committee and the other was defeated on the House floor.

"Equal legal rights, which the ERA would guarantee under the U. S. Constitution to every citizen regardless of sex, is certainly relevant to our commission charge," said Alberta Meyer, chairman of the commission.

The commission was established by the legislature in 1967. its job is to study the legal status of women and make recommendations to the governor and legislature.

A fall conference for minority women in the St. Louis area and the sixth annual conference on the status of women in Nevada, Mo., next spring are on the commission's calendar, Miss Meyer said.

The resolution reaffirming support for the Equal Rights Amendment was approved in aweekend meeting of the commission, Miss Meyer said today.

Firework dangerous

BOSTON (AP) — As many as 10,000 persons may be victims of fireworks accidents this Fourth of July period, the National Fire Protection Association predicted today.

Charles S. Morgan, president of the international fire safety organization, said bootleggers are making it easy for unwary Americans to observe the holiday with "toys" capable of burning, blinding, maiming and even killing.

"Despite legislation in many states which limits pyrotechnics to licensed public displays, sale of fireworks is widespread through vigorous activity by persons motivated by profit rather than concern for public safety," Morgan said.

As many as half of fireworks accident victims are children under age 11, the association said.

Former POW kills self

COMMERCE CITY, Colo. AP - An hour before he shot himself to death, a former prisoner of war charged with collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam told a doctor he feared the military would find some excuse to keep him in the service.

Marine Sgt. Abel Larry Kavanaugh died on Wednesday of one bullet in the head from a.25 -caliber handgun, Adams County District Atty. Floyd Marks said.

"From the evidence we have now, it would appear that it was a suicide," Marks said. The bullet entered the left temple, police said.

Police Sgt. Jack Baldwin said, "We're officially calling it a self-inflicted wound. At this point, we don't know if it was accidental, but I would strongly doubt it."

Kavanaugh, 24, was the second former POW to die since returning from captivity. Air Force Capt. Edward Allen Brudno died of an overdose of barbiturates on June 3 in Harrison, N.Y.

Dr. John W. Bolin, a general practitioner in nearby Aurora, said he completed a physical examination of Kavanaugh about an hour before the young Marine shot himself at the home of his father-in-law in this Denver suburb.

"I found he was in absolutely perfect physical condition, but he said he was afraid the military would make something up and find an excuse to hold him in the service," Bolin said.

"He was very quiet and seemed depressed and very anxious," Bolin said. "When I asked what was wrong, he said he has been a POW but didn't go any further, saying it was a military matter."

Kavanaugh, here on a 60-day convalescent leave, was one of eight former POWs charged with aiding and conspiring with the enemy at a prison compound called the Plantation, near Hanoi.

Col. Theodore W. Guy, of Tucson, Ariz., the ranking U.S. officer in the POW compound, filed the charges. The secretary of the Navy is considering the charges to determine whether a formal inquiry which could lead to courtsmartial should be ordered.

Although the family was secluded, friends said the young sergeant had been reticent about discussing his case or POW experience.

Kavanaugh was captured April 2, 1968, while on patrol in South Vietnam and was listed as missing in action for 3½ years before his family learned he was a prisoner.

The charges filed by Guy against Kavanaugh included disrespect toward an officer, disobedience to an order, communicating and corresponding with the enemy, conspiracy to impair lovaltv. insubordination and counseling of the enemy.

Sterilization leads to $1 million Suit

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A federal ban on use of a birth control drug led to the sterilization of two young girls and a $1 million suit claiming the operations were performed without their consent, an antipoverty worker says.

Mrs. Orelia Dixon, head of the Montgomery Family Planning Center which arranged for the operations for Mary Alice and Minnie Relf, said the girls had been getting periodic injections to keep from getting pregnant.

Mary Alice is 12. The suit lists Minnie's age as 14, but Mrs. Dixon said health records show the girl is 16.

Mrs. Dixon said the drug was ordered off the market recently by the Food and Drug Administration, and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare threatened to cut off funds for the center if use of the drug was continued.

Mrs. Dixon declined to identify the drug involved, but a state health official identified it as Depo Provera. He said it was banned on the grounds that it produced an abnormally high female hormone count.

"We talked to them about the other alternatives that they could possibly use," Mrs. Dixon said of the Relf girls.

She said it was agreed the girls would have tubular ligation operations performed, which would leave them sterile. She said the center had arranged sterilization for 11 persons during the past year, not all minors.

She refused to comment further on the case.

The girls were sterilized two weeks ago. On Tuesday, their father, Lonnie Reif, filed a $1 million damage suit in U.S. District Court, claiming that the girls did not understand beforehand the effects of the operation.

Among the defendants named in the suit were the Family Planning Center and the Montgomery Community Action Agency, which administers the family planning program.

The suit alleges that the girls never knew what was going to happen to them when they went to the hospital where the operation was performed and that their mother, who is illiterate, marked her "X" on consent forms thinking the girls were going to get more shots.

Mrs. Dixon denied the girls or their mother did not understand what was going to happen.

"These girls knew full well what happened to them and their mother understood exactly what she was doing," Mrs. Dixon said.

"We have never sterilized anyone unless they ask to be. We explain it carefully to them and it is entirely their own decision. We never force them."

Firework dangerous

BOSTON (AP) — As many as 10,000 persons may be victims of fireworks accidents this Fourth of July period, the National Fire Protection Association predicted today.

Charles S. Morgan, president of the international fire safety organization, said bootleggers are making it easy for unwary Americans to observe the holiday with "toys" capable of burning, blinding, maiming and even killing.

"Despite legislation in many states which limits pyrotechnics to licensed public displays, sale of fireworks is widespread through vigorous activity by persons motivated by profit rather than concern for public safety," Morgan said.

As many as half of fireworks accident victims are children under age 11, the association said.

Former POW kills self

COMMERCE CITY, Colo. AP - An hour before he shot himself to death, a former prisoner of war charged with collaborating with the enemy in Vietnam told a doctor he feared the military would find some excuse to keep him in the service.

Marine Sgt. Abel Larry Kavanaugh died on Wednesday of one bullet in the head from a.25 -caliber handgun, Adams County District Atty. Floyd Marks said.

"From the evidence we have now, it would appear that it was a suicide," Marks said. The bullet entered the left temple, police said.

Police Sgt. Jack Baldwin said, "We're officially calling it a self-inflicted wound. At this point, we don't know if it was accidental, but I would strongly doubt it."

Kavanaugh, 24, was the second former POW to die since returning from captivity. Air Force Capt. Edward Allen Brudno died of an overdose of barbiturates on June 3 in Harrison, N.Y.

Dr. John W. Bolin, a general practitioner in nearby Aurora, said he completed a physical examination of Kavanaugh about an hour before the young Marine shot himself at the home of his father-in-law in this Denver suburb.

"I found he was in absolutely perfect physical condition, but he said he was afraid the military would make something up and find an excuse to hold him in the service," Bolin said.

"He was very quiet and seemed depressed and very anxious," Bolin said. "When I asked what was wrong, he said he has been a POW but didn't go any further, saying it was a military matter."

Kavanaugh, here on a 60-day convalescent leave, was one of eight former POWs charged with aiding and conspiring with the enemy at a prison compound called the Plantation, near Hanoi.

Col. Theodore W. Guy, of Tucson, Ariz., the ranking U.S. officer in the POW compound, filed the charges. The secretary of the Navy is considering the charges to determine whether a formal inquiry which could lead to courtsmartial should be ordered.

Although the family was secluded, friends said the young sergeant had been reticent about discussing his case or POW experience.

Kavanaugh was captured April 2, 1968, while on patrol in South Vietnam and was listed as missing in action for 3½ years before his family learned he was a prisoner.

The charges filed by Guy against Kavanaugh included disrespect toward an officer, disobedience to an order, communicating and corresponding with the enemy, conspiracy to impair lovaltv. insubordination and counseling of the enemy.

Sterilization leads to $1 million Suit

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A federal ban on use of a birth control drug led to the sterilization of two young girls and a $1 million suit claiming the operations were performed without their consent, an antipoverty worker says.

Mrs. Orelia Dixon, head of the Montgomery Family Planning Center which arranged for the operations for Mary Alice and Minnie Relf, said the girls had been getting periodic injections to keep from getting pregnant.

Mary Alice is 12. The suit lists Minnie's age as 14, but Mrs. Dixon said health records show the girl is 16.

Mrs. Dixon said the drug was ordered off the market recently by the Food and Drug Administration, and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare threatened to cut off funds for the center if use of the drug was continued.

Mrs. Dixon declined to identify the drug involved, but a state health official identified it as Depo Provera. He said it was banned on the grounds that it produced an abnormally high female hormone count.

"We talked to them about the other alternatives that they could possibly use," Mrs. Dixon said of the Relf girls.

She said it was agreed the girls would have tubular ligation operations performed, which would leave them sterile. She said the center had arranged sterilization for 11 persons during the past year, not all minors.

She refused to comment further on the case.

The girls were sterilized two weeks ago. On Tuesday, their father, Lonnie Relf, filed a $1 million damage suit in U.S. District Court, claiming that the girls did not understand beforehand the effects of the operation.

Among the defendants named in the suit were the Family Planning Center and the Montgomery Community Action Agency, which administers the family planning program.

The suit alleges that the girls never knew what was going to happen to them when they went to the hospital where the operation was performed and that their mother, who is illiterate, marked her "X" on consent forms thinking the girls were going to get more shots.

Mrs. Dixon denied the girls or their mother did not understand what was going to happen.

"These girls knew full well what happened to them and their mother understood exactly what she was doing," Mrs. Dixon said.

"We have never sterilized anyone unless they ask to be. We explain it carefully to them and it is entirely their own decision. We never force them."

Dean reveals 'Enemies List'

WASHINGTON (AP)— Some call it Washington's newest Social Register, but the White House didn't intend it that way.

Nearly 200 names of the rich, the famous and the not-so- famous who didn't get along with the Nixon administration are inscribed on a so- called "Enemies List." John W. Dean III says the list came from White House files entitled Opponents List and Political Enemies Project.

The list itself and various related memoranda were turned over to the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday by the 34- year- old fired White House counsel scheduled to return to the witness chair today for his fourth day of testimony.

Some of those named expressed surprise. Others considered it an honor, and several people in the hearing room were disappointed at not making what one called "Washington's newest Social Register."

Former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson, whom Dean described as having had a key role in the enemies project, said the lengthy list prepared by the late George T. Bell in 1971 was kept solely to insure that those named weren't invited to the White House for dinner.

Dean testified that priority targets were selected from the list by Colson and other White House officials, in keeping with a plan to "use the available federal machinery to screw our political enemies."

Dean admitted he drew up the plan on Aug. 16, 1971, and submitted it in a confidential memorandum to presidential Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman, domestic- affairs adviser John D. Ehrlichman "and others at the White House."

He recommended Lyn Nofziger of the Republican National Committee for project coordinator. His job would be to "determine what sorts of dealings these individuals have with the federal government and how we can best screw them; e.g., grant availability, federal contracts, litigation, prosecution, etc."

Dean also prepared a briefing paper for Haldeman to be used as the basis of a meeting with Internal Revenue Service chief Johnnie Walters. He complained that, because of a "lack of guts and effort" on the part of Republican appointees at IRS, the White House had been unable to:

— "Stimulate audits of persons who should be audited";

— Obtain IRS information "regarding our political enemies;"

— Place President Nixon's supporters in the IRS bureaucracy;

— Or "crack down on the multitude of tax- exempt foundations that feed left-wing political causes."

Asked for his reaction to being named on the list, actor Paul Newman, "I am sending Gordon Liddy to pick up my award. I would like to thank John Mitchell, Jeb Magruder, John Dean III and Maurice Stans for making this award possible."

The longer list of opponents was divided into various groups and subgroups. Under "Politicos," it named 10 Democratic senators, six House members, "12 black congressmen" and three "miscellaneous politicos."

There were 57 journalists and three newspapers listed under "Media," 10 celebrities, 21 "Academics," 53 in the business category, including 29 under "Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace and New National Priorities," 14 labor leaders and 18 organizations, most of which had one or more of their leaders named with them.

BONNE TERRE, Mo. (AP) — Talks were scheduled to resume here today between the Cominco-American lead mine at Bixby, Mo., and the striking United Steelworkers Union Local 7347.

Members of the union walked off the job May 31, shutting down production operations at the mine. Jewell Henson district representative for the steelworkers, said the main issue in the dispute was economic.

Economic task force planned for Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond today announced plans for an economic development task force for Missouri. At the same time, he signed a proclamation declaring July as the state's first Econokic Development Month.

"All of us in Missouri recognize the importance of sound economic growth and development to provide jobs and to provide opportunities for the citizens of this state," Bond said.

He said there is a need to encourage existing industries to stay and plan expansion in Missouri.

"Missouri's natural industries in tourism should be emphasized. We have so many opportunities for the people of Missouri to see their own state that the economic development task force is encouraging Missourians to take advantage of the resources in their home state," the governor said.

"Finally, we are going to talk about the opportunities for foreign trade and exports. The many products, particularly agriculture vroducts, the state of Missouri offers, gives us a great opportunity to increase the economic well-being of our state through expanded exports and foreign investments," Bond said.

The governor said Alfred C. Sikes, director of the Missouri Department of Community Affairs, will be working with state agencies concerned with promotion and economic growth as well as with agencies concerned with protecting the environment.

Theft charges refiled

BENTON— Felonious theft charges against Orley Jackson of Illmo were refiled Wednesday by Asst. Pros. Atty. Steve Taylor after Judge Lloyd Briggs had dismissed the case during a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court.

In dismissing the case, Judge Briggs ruled that the charges against Jackson failed to establish that a felony had been committed since the complaint did not state that the theft exceeded $50 in value.

Taylor refiled the amended charges moments after the dismissal, accusing Jackson of stealing personal property on June 7 from the Illmo Special Road District.

A first degree robbery charge against Jimmy Sloan was taken under advisement by Judge Briggs until July 3. Sloan is charged with robbing Sterling Duncan of Chaffee.

Continued until July 11 was a case charging Steve Williams with causing minors to stay away from home all night on May 18 by driving them out of town.

Case was continued until July 3 against Jackie Harless of Canalou, charged with having possession of marijuana and 44 tablets of amphetamines.

Other court action and fines included:

Teamsters reach tentative contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters Union and trucking industry reached tentative agreement today on a new 33month contract providing wage increases of less than seven per cent for 400,000 drivers nationwide.

The agreement came following an all-night bargaining session at Teamster headquarters.

A formal announcement was expected later in the day. Neither union nor industry officials would comment.

However, sources close to the negotiation said the contract calls for a total wage increase of 95 cents per hour spread over 33 months for the truckers who currently average $6.16 per hour.

The drivers will receive 35 cents per hour beginning July 1 and an additional 30 cents per hour in each of the remaining years of the contract.

In addition, the union won cost of living raises not to exceed 11 cents per hour, the sources said. Improved vacation and holiday schedules and health and welfare benefits also were included.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodity futures prices were weak in early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

The opening of trade in soybean, soybean oil, soybean meal and silver was delayed on order of the board's directors. There was no statement from the directors on their reason for the delayed opening but it undoubtedly was linked to the government's embargo on exports of soybeans and by-products ordered late Wednesday.

On the opening, wheat was 1 to 7¼ cents a bushel lower, July 2.66; corn was 3 to 4½ lower, July 2.21; oats were 3½ to 6 lower, July new 92½ cents.

Cards bomb Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — What was similar to a day off for the St. Louis Cardinals was just another off day for the sagging Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals had not defeated the Pirates in five previous games this season, but Wednesday night they collected 22 hits and whipped Pittsburgh 15-4.

Their hits included two homers, a triple and six doubles off four Pirate pitchers.

"A game like this is equivalent to a day off," said Joe Torre, who hit for the cycle for the first time in his 12-year career, smacking a homer, triple, double and single in five times at bat.

"You can relax a little. Pittsburgh knows the feeling. They've done it often enough to us."

Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons also had a picnic against the pitching of Jim Rooker, 1-2, Luke Walker, Bob Johnson and Steve Blass.

He drove in five runs withe three hits in four at bats, including a two-run double, a homer, a sacrifice fly and a double.

Torre got a double and drove in a run in the first inning, smached a homer in the third and tripled in the fourth. He had to wait until the ninth for his single, and he admitted he was fidgety about it.

"I was pressing like crazy to get the single," he said.

Torre hit into a double play his fourth time at the plate, then walked in the eighth and didn't figure he would bat again. In fact he asked Manager Red Schoendienst to replace him in the lineup.

Schoendienst, however, said Torre might still get another chance to bat in the ninth and he proved to be correct when the Cards struck for four more runs off Blass.

With two outs in the ninth, Blass walked the next two batters and Torre smacked a single up the middle, giving him the personal mark.

"I'm a terrible hitter when I go for myself," he said.

Reggie Cleveland was the beneficiary of the Cardinal carnage. He won his eighth game of the season, scattering seven hits and striking out five.

Two of the Pirate hits were home runs by Richie Hebner, his fourth in four games, and Bob Robertson.

The victory put the Cardinals, who once had a 1-13 record this season, into a tie for second place in the National League East with Montreal.

Meanwhile, the Pirates fell to last place again, 10½ games back of the front-running Cubs.

Cards bomb Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — What was similar to a day off for the St. Louis Cardinals was just another off day for the sagging Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals had not defeated the Pirates in five previous games this season, but Wednesday night they collected 22 hits and whipped Pittsburgh 15-4.

Their hits included two homers, a triple and six doubles off four Pirate pitchers.

"A game like this is equivalent to a day off," said Joe Torre, who hit for the cycle for the first time in his 12-year career, smacking a homer, triple, double and single in five times at bat.

"You can relax a little. Pittsburgh knows the feeling. They've done it often enough to us."

Cardinal catcher Ted Simmons also had a picnic against the pitching of Jim Rooker, 1-2, Luke Walker, Bob Johnson and Steve Blass.

He drove in five runs withe three hits in four at bats, including a two-run double, a homer, a sacrifice fly and a double.

Torre got a double and drove in a run in the first inning, smached a homer in the third and tripled in the fourth. He had to wait until the ninth for his single, and he admitted he was fidgety about it.

"I was pressing like crazy to get the single," he said.

Torre hit into a double play his fourth time at the plate, then walked in the eighth and didn't figure he would bat again. In fact he asked Manager Red Schoendienst to replace him in the lineup.

Schoendienst, however, said Torre might still get another chance to bat in the ninth and he proved to be correct when the Cards struck for four more runs off Blass.

With two outs in the ninth, Blass walked the next two batters and Torre smacked a single up the middle, giving him the personal mark.

"I'm a terrible hitter when I go for myself," he said.

Reggie Cleveland was the beneficiary of the Cardinal carnage. He won his eighth game of the season, scattering seven hits and striking out five.

Two of the Pirate hits were home runs by Richie Hebner, his fourth in four games, and Bob Robertson.

The victory put the Cardinals, who once had a 1-13 record this season, into a tie for second place in the National League East with Montreal.

Meanwhile, the Pirates fell to last place again, 10½ games back of the front-running Cubs.

Chaffee moves to finals

CHAFFEE— Mike McGuire provided the hitting and Ricky Eftink the pitching as Chaffee moved into the finals of the 13- year old district tournament Wednesday night, defeating East Prairie 6- 5 to remain the only undefeated team in the five- team double elimination event.

New Madrid was eliminated from the event via a 11- 5 defeat at the hands of Sikeston.

McGuire pounded out three safties and scored two runs for Chaffee while Eftink checked East Prairie on four hits, fanning seven during the encounter. Larry Norman suffered the defeat when Chaffee crossed home plate with the deciding run in the bottom of the seventh inning.

New Madrid used three pitchers during the encounter while Sikeston went all the way with Mike Greer. Rodger Baker was issued the loss.

Walker hurls 1-hitter

Security National edged the Elks 4-3 while Mitchel Walker pitched a 1-0 shutout for Leible Implement over Optimist in Sr. Babe Ruth action Wednesday night.

The Elks were the first to come through with a score which gave them an early lead. Holding Security National scoreless for four innings, the Elks maintained their lead. When Security National did score, they brought across only a single run which was not enough for the edge. The Elks added to their score during the sixth as did Security National. Going into the final inning, the Elks held the lead but could not handle Security National as they managed to score to take a surprise win. Saulter and Duncon both had doubles for the winning team. Hockersmith had the win as Love suffered the loss.

Mitchell Walker continued his fine pitching as he picked up yet another win and a shutout. Optimist had four hits against Walker, but could not produce runs with them. Optimist's only score came in the second. Shatzley had the only extra base hit of the game with a double. LaPlant was the losing pitcher.

CHAFFEE— Mike McGuire provided the hitting and Ricky Eftink the pitching as Chaffee moved into the finals of the 13- year old district tournament Wednesday night, defeating East Prairie 6- 5 to remain the only undefeated team in the five- team double elimination event.

New Madrid was eliminated from the event via a 11- 5 defeat at the hands of Sikeston.

McGuire pounded out three safties and scored two runs for Chaffee while Eftink checked East Prairie on four hits, fanning seven during the encounter. Larry Norman suffered the defeat when Chaffee crossed home plate with the deciding run in the bottom of the seventh inning.

New Madrid used three pitchers during the encounter while Sikeston went all the way with Mike Greer. Rodger Baker was issued the loss.

Walker hurls 1-hitter

Security National edged the Elks 4-3 while Mitchel Walker pitched a 1-0 shutout for Leible Implement over Optimist in Sr. Babe Ruth action Wednesday night.

The Elks were the first to come through with a score which gave them an early lead. Holding Security National scoreless for four innings, the Elks maintained their lead. When Security National did score, they brought across only a single run which was not enough for the edge. The Elks added to their score during the sixth as did Security National. Going into the final inning, the Elks held the lead but could not handle Security National as they managed to score to take a surprise win. Saulter and Duncon both had doubles for the winning team. Hockersmith had the win as Love suffered the loss.

Mitchell Walker continued his fine pitching as he picked up yet another win and a shutout. Optimist had four hits against Walker, but could not produce runs with them. Optimist's only score came in the second. Shatzley had the only extra base hit of the game with a double. LaPlant was the losing pitcher.

First National pulled away from a first inning tie to take a big 13- 2 win over Flower Basket while Ziegenhorn downed Righter 10-3 in the American Little League action Wednesday night.

The score was tied 2- all during first inning play, but First National showed consistent hitting and fielding throughout the game which gave them the lead and the win. Flower Basket could not move against the tough throwing King. First National put the finishing touches on the win in the fourth when they scored six big runs. Steve Noel, the losing pitcher, had the only double for Flower Basket. Frankum, Swinney, and King all had doubles for First National.

Ziegenhorn gained the early lead during the first inning and held on for the win. Righter could not stop the Ziegenhorn team in the second as they came around the bases six times. Righter picked up two runs in the fourth but it was not enough to overtake Ziegenhorn. Anderson, the winning pitcher, had the only extra base hit of the game with a double. Dodd had the loss.

Lewis blanks Lions

Pizza Inn held off a rally from the Legion to take a 13-11 win while Lewis Wasson had a 4-0 shutout over the Leions Wednesday night in the National Little League play.

Both teams in the opener had a struggle during the first inning and the score was a 1-1 tie, but action broke out in the second. Pizza Inn blasted out eight runs which gave them the lead over Legion's six runs. Trailing by two, Legion could not hold off Pizza Inn and they went on to score four runs which opened up the edge. Legion was hitting but could not produce enough score to squeeze through a win. Tope was the bit hitter for Legion, despite the loss, as he slugged out three doubles and Leonard added one. Pizza Inn's Lane, Walls, Beaudean, and Love, the winning pitcher, all had doubles with Cox adding help with a triple. Tanner had the loss.

Wasson proved to be too tough for the Lions to handle as he held them scoreless. The scrappy little right-hander allowed only two hits in the entire game. Frost and Longstreet were the two to reach him. Lewis' score came in the third and fifth with two runs each time which was enough to give them the win. Lambert and Wasson were the hitting powers for Lewis as they each had a home run. Frost pitched the loss.

The Daily Standard remained in first place in the Eastern Division of the Musial Little League when they turned away Little 9-6. Malone & Hyde scored a 23-2 romp over Rotary Wednesday night.

Malone & Hyde started off big in the first inning scoring six times to take an early lead. Rotary scored in that inning too, and in the following, but they could only squeeze out one run each inning which did not put a dent into the score of Malone & Hyde. M & H continued their hot streak, coming around the bases seven times in the second, but blasted Rotary's pitcher for 10 big rins in the third to coast to victory. Malone & Hyde's White hit two doubles and Evans one to lead in the hitting department. Brashear was the winning and Vault the losing pitcher.

Sikeston Standard moved their record to 7-1 with their win over Little. The score was titled in the first at 2-2, but Standard broke away in the second to take the lead. Little added a single run but could not come around to take the edge. Standard added four insurance runs in the fourth while holding off Little to take yet another win. Pitcher, Howard and Ferrell both had doubles for Little. Green, Pollare, Moore, the winning pitcher, and Greer all had doubles for the Standard. Porter suffered the loss.

Lewis blanks Lions

Pizza Inn held off a rally from the Legion to take a 13-11 win while Lewis Wasson had a 4-0 shutout over the Leions Wednesday night in the National Little League play.

Both teams in the opener had a struggle during the first inning and the score was a 1-1 tie, but action broke out in the second. Pizza Inn blasted out eight runs which gave them the lead over Legion's six runs. Trailing by two, Legion could not hold off Pizza Inn and they went on to score four runs which opened up the edge. Legion was hitting but could not produce enough score to squeeze through a win. Tope was the bit hitter for Legion, despite the loss, as he slugged out three doubles and Leonard added one. Pizza Inn's Lane, Walls, Beaudean, and Love, the winning pitcher, all had doubles with Cox adding help with a triple. Tanner had the loss.

Wasson proved to be too tough for the Lions to handle as he held them scoreless. The scrappy little right-hander allowed only two hits in the entire game. Frost and Longstreet were the two to reach him. Lewis' score came in the third and fifth with two runs each time which was enough to give them the win. Lambert and Wasson were the hitting powers for Lewis as they each had a home run. Frost pitched the loss.

What's the law?

The case of the saddled soldier

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Private Wimple was accused of stealing a kiss and, instead of being charged with petting larceny, he was charged with having committed a crime of a much more serious nature. And, if that weren't bad enough, Captain Mare, a veterinarian, was appointed to defend him at his court martial.

"Just one little old minute." protested the private at the beginning of the court-martial. "If I'm going to have to stand trial, I want a lawyer to defend me and not a horse doctor. After all. I'm charged with a crime, not having hoof and mouth disease."

"This is the Army," was the answer, " and in the Army all a soldier is entitled to at a court-martial is an officer to defend him. And, fortunately, you got a good one. Captain Mare knows his oats."

Despite all of his naying, however, Private Wimple was compelled to stand trial with Captaint Mare at his side. Consequently, when he was ultimately convicted, he took the matter to the federal courts where he demanded his release from the stockade where he had been deposited at the conclusion of his trial.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order Private Wimple's release for his having been saddled with a veterinarian as a lawyer?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The jduge held that the 6th admendment fo the United States Constitution gives a soldier, as well as a civilian, the right to counsel when charged with a serious crime. And, concluded the judge, this presupposes that such counsel will be someone who has had some experience and training in the law. Merely being an officer is not sufficient to meet the constitutional requirement. (Based upon a 1966 United States District Court Decisiton)

Labor department eases upon pesticide protection regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bending to pressure from Congress and farmers, the Labor Department has watered down controversial regulations intended to protect farm workers from pesticides.

Asst. Labor Secretary John H. Stender said the original regulations were "broader than necessary" and covered some pesticides that "are not highly toxic."

This was the explanation given by Stender in signing the revised emergency temporary regulations last Friday. They were not to be announced until published in the Federal Register June 29. A copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

The initial regulations, which governed the time farm workers could enter fields or orchards after the area has been sprayed with organophosphorous chemicals, met heavy opposition from growers and farm state congressmen.

Consumers long have been protected by federal laws banning the sale of crops with excessive pesticide residues, but the regulations were the first federal-attempt to protect farm workers from the poisons.

Adopted May 1, they covered 21 pesticides used on such crops as apples, peaches, tobacco, grapes, lemons, oranges and grapefruits.

At that time, Stender cited an estimated 800 deaths and 80,000 illnesses annually from pesticide poisoning. He had said the new rules would provide the safeguards needed to protect field hands "from these hazardous materials."

But the Florida Peach Growers Association, joined by several other associations throughout the country, filed a barrage of suits in the federal courts seeking to revoke the new rules. They argued that evidence was insufficient to warrant the issuance of emergency temporary standards without holding public hearings.

The revised regulations, now scheduled to become law July 13, cover only 12 of the 21 pesticides originally included. They also reduce by at least two days the time when farm workers may re-enter a field after it has been sprayed.

Re-entry times now will vary from a minimum of one to 14 days, depending on the pesticide used and whether the field is wet or dry.

A series of public hearings will be held to establish permanent regulations.

"They have taken the guts out of it," said Mirian Guido, an attorney for the Migrant Legal Action Program who has represented a number of farm workers in petitioning the government for the emergency standards.

Butz predicts meat shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has predicted shortages of meat and poultry in the United States, but other economic officials say the possibility of food rationing is "extremely unlikely."

Butz told the Senate Banking Committee Monday that President Nixon needs standby authority to reduce agriculture exports to solve the shortage problem.

He said the squeeze between high feed prices and the price freeze is hurting poultry raisers, forcing hog producers to sell off breeding stock, and causing cattlemen to keep beef off the market.

Meanwhile, the President's Council of Economic Advisers said it was concerned about shortages, but that rationing within the next year is unlikely. The council said the freeze on some food, including broiler chickens, may have to be eased.

Butz said that the granting of the export control authority would prompt producers to expand since they would have government assurance that their feed would be sufficient and at lower prices in the future.

Economic council chairman Herbert Stein said his group has read "lots of horror stories" about producers killing chickens because they are too expensive to raise. He said the council also was concerned about shortages of eggs, tomatoes and other products.

Turning to gasoline prices, Stein said some 1,106 service stations have had to roll back prices as a result of consumer complaints that the stations were violating the freeze.

The overcharges averaged two cents a gallon at 741 independent and 365 companyowned stations, the council said.

Stein said the administration still hopes to have an official announcement on Phase 4 controls by mid-July.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

God keeps faith, and he will not allow you to be tested above your powers, but when the test comes he will at the same time provide a way out, by enabling you to sustain it. [1 Corinthians 10:13]

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, help us to trust Thee for all that is to come. In Jesus' name. Amen.

President George Washington's Farewell Address of 1796 gave strong warnings against permanent alliances with foreign powers, partiality toward favorite nations, big public debt, a large military establishment and the devices of a "small, artful, enterprising minority" to control or change the government, The World Almanac recalls.

What does it cost

in your town?

The public has a right to know what it costs to build or improve a street or building in your town. Your local newspaper is the publication where you find that information.

For centuries, people have recognized the right of the community and of the individual to be put on notice.

Many citizens don't understand what a legal notice is, or why they're printed in your local newspaper. Many people don't read them until it's too late.

Legal notices keep a citizen informed on all school, city and county action by official bodies. Legal notices also give a citizen an opportunity to do something about some proposed action that may affect his rights.

Your local newspaper is a long established medium for such notices as provided by law or by official designation. And, it's one of the many public services provided by this newspaper.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

God keeps faith, and he will not allow you to be tested above your powers, but when the test comes he will at the same time provide a way out, by enabling you to sustain it. [1 Corinthians 10:13]

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, help us to trust Thee for all that is to come. In Jesus' name. Amen.

President George Washington's Farewell Address of 1796 gave strong warnings against permanent alliances with foreign powers, partiality toward favorite nations, big public debt, a large military establishment and the devices of a "small, artful, enterprising minority" to control or change the government. The World Almanac recalls.

What does it cost to build a new school or fix the streets in your town?

The public has a right to know what it costs to build or improve a street or building in your town. Your local newspaper is the publication where you find that information.

For centuries, people have recognized the right of the community and of the individual to be put on notice.

Many citizens don't understand what a legal notice is, or why they're printed in your local newspaper. Many people don't read them until it's too late.

Legal notices keep a citizen informed on all school, city and county action by official bodies. Legal notices also give a citizen an opportunity to do something about some proposed action that may affect his rights.

Your local newspaper is a long established medium for such notices as provided by law or by official designation. And, it's one of the many public services provided by this newspaper.

NEWSPAPERS DELIVER THE LOCAL STORY.

The field editor of a well- known New York subsidy publishing firm will be in Cape Girardeau in July/ Aug. He will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication. All subjects will be considered, including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, juveniles, religious books, etc.

If you have completed a book- length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work and stating whichpart of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment. Please mention your phone number. You will promptly receive a confirmation for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to us for a free reading and evaluation. We will also be glad to hear from those whose literary works are still in progress. Please address:

WATERMARKS, which give distinction to certain brands of paper or identify the stationery of a company, were invented by Italian papermakers in the 13th century. They are made by twisting fine wire into a design and sewing to a mold. After the pulp is poured over the form, the design remains in the sheet and appears in a white outline against the darker tone of the material. Early watermarks were sometimes used as secret symbols or religious or political societies.

The water refiner, is identified through beauty, efficiency, performance, economy. The patented 5- cycle process assures you of the best in water refiners. For a free home demonstration for "Better Life Through Better Water," call

WATERMARKS, which give distinction to certain brands of paper or identify the stationery of a company, were invented by Italian papermakers in the 13th century. They are made by twisting fine wire into a design and sewing to a mold. After the pulp is poured over the form, the design remains in the sheet and appears in a white outline against the darker tone of the material. Early watermarks were sometimes used as secret symbols or religious or political societies.

The water refiner, is identified through beauty, efficiency, performance, economy. The patented 5-cycle process assures you of the best in water refiners. For a free home demonstration for "Better Life Through Better Water," call

Garner receives degree

GRANITE CITY, Ill. — Larry D.Garner, a former Sikeston, Mo., resident, and the son of Mrs. Ethel Garner of Sikeston Route Four, graduated June 9 from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. He received a bachelor of science degree with a major in business and marketing.

Garner has previously spent one year in Vietnam where he served as military policeman.

While in the service he married Linda Dudiker of Granite City where the couple reside with their two children.

Patrolmen try to use less gas

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri highway patrolmen have been trying for two weeks to use less gasoline.

"What we've done is try to cut usage by 10 per cent," said Lt. Col. Walter Snyder, assistant patrol superintendent. "We've asked them to cut their routine patrol speed to 50 miles an hour and also to stay on stationary observation 10 minutes of each hour."

Results will be studied when the first month of the new routine ends July 12.

Snyder said the patrol has been able to get gasoline so far but has had some trouble in some areas, especially southwest Missouri.

He also noted that 1973 model patrol cars go only 9.3 miles on a gallon of gas, compared to 10 miles by the 1972 models.

Ireland visit to be long awaited dream come true

Jefferson City — Secretary of State James C. Kirkpatrick is leaving July 2 for a three-week visit to Ireland. It will be his first visit to Ireland and his first vacation in nearly nine years in office.

Kirkpatrick has boasted of his Irish background for as long as people can remember. His signature appears in bright green ink on all of the state's official documents. He first started using green ink in his early days in the newspaper business, over 40 years ago.

In 1969 he published the first Official Manual of Missouri with a green cover. For more than 90 years the cover had been blue. The book was even unofficially known as the Blue Book, until it sported its Kelly green cover and was once again, Kirkpatrick's insistence, properly called the Official Manual.

Kirkpartick spreads Irish goodwill throughout the state and nation. He is president-elect of the National Association of Secretaries of State, one of Missouri's most popular public officials, and a frequent public speaker. Blessed with a gift of Irish good cheer he rarely turns down a speaking invitation. He accepted more than 150 in 1972.

In addition to his professed love for the Irish, Kirkpatrick is faithful about his "wearin' o' the green." He always sports at least a green pocket handerkerchief and frequently turns out in green from hat to shoes.

A pair of bright green suede boots made news when Kirkpatrick wore them to his annual St. Patrick's Day party last year in his office, the "green room" of the Capitol. They were made by a shoe factory in Monett and presented to the Secretary by some Monett friends.

March 17 is always open house in the Secretary's office for government officials and friends from all over Missouri. Green punch and green cookies are served from a table decorated with shamrocks.

The Secretary spends a good deal of time reading the main on "his" day. He gets almost as many St. Patrick's Day cards as he does Christmas cards.

St. Patrick's Day usually finds him in his green boots marching in a parade. Last year he joined Mahor O'Higgins of Galway, Ireland, for a stroll through St. Louis.

St. Patrick's Day 1972 was spent in Rolla where the engineers at the University of Missouri- Rolla faithfully recreate the Court of St. Patrick. They honored Kirkpatrick that year by making him a knight of the court.

"I've looked forward for years to making a trip to Ireland," Kirkpatrick commented, "but the opportunity has never presented itself until now.

"Jefferson City's Little Theatre is making its second annual tour. This year they will present 'Hello Dolly' and they invited me to go along.

"I plan to attend the opening performance and then strike out on my own to see the country and get to know the people. I will also be writing my regular columns for the Lamar Daily Democrat."

During his absence, Kirkpatrick will leave the duties of the Secretary of State's office in the hands of another Irishman, his deputy secretary, James F. Dowd III.

More folks on the farm

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were more folks living down on the farm last year than the year before, but the government says the change isn't significant.

The 1972 estimate of the farm population released Sunday is 9.61 million, up 185,000 from 1971 according to the Census Bureau and the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service.

However, the increase should not be interpreted as a change in the long-term downward trend in the number of people living on farms, the government said.

Administration Tainted

Wrongdoing Keeps Emerging

By DON OAKLEY

To the tangled web called "Watergate" has been added yet another strand—the grand jury indictment of two former Nixon administration Cabinet members for allegedly seeking to obstruct an investigation by a federal agency.

The charges brought against former Attorney General John Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans—that they attempted to intervene in an investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission of financier Robert Vesco in return for a secret $200,000 contribution to the Nixon re-election campaign—have nothing directly to do with the June 17, 1972, break-in of Democratic headquarters in Washington's Watergate apartment-office complex.

But they are part of a general and still emerging pattern of intrigue and wrongdoing in both high and low places throughout the administration. Not only has the executive department come under a heavy cloud of suspicion and distrust but the CIA and the FBI as well.

Both Mitchell and Stans have been implicated in the Watergate conspiracy. Other Watergate figures have been implicated in the Pentagon papers trial. Then there is the IT&T affair, another case of alleged campaign contributions for alleged favors. Then there are the charges of phony telegrams in support of the President's decision to invade Cambodia in 1970, the sabotage of at least one presidential hopeful's campaign, the infiltration of agents provocateur among radical demonstrators at the party conventions in Miami last summer, wiretaps here, wiretaps there, evidence hidden here, evidence destroyed there.

The complexity of it all, let alone the sordidness of it all, let alone the sheer stupidity of much of it, is enough to cause ordinary Americans to throw up their hands in disgust.

It cannot be stressed too strongly that indictment is not the same as conviction. Yet criminal prosecution of such high-placed federal officials has been a rarity in the country's history.

Only one Cabinet member has ever been indicted, tried, convicted and sent to prison. This was Albert B. Fall, Interior secretary in the Harding administration, who was convicted of accepting a bribe in the Teapot Dome scandal in the 1920s.

Teapot Dome, once considered the scandal of the century, was essentially a straightforward case of a few public officials using their offices for private gain.

"Watergate," as a name for everything that has suddenly burst forth in recent weeks, is a far more serious and far more shocking matter. It has struck directly at the roots of our democratic system and has placed the effective continuance of the Nixon administration, if not its actual continuance, in real jeopardy.

Historians will be years in sorting out all the facets of "Watergate." Americans will be years in recovering from its repercussions.

UMR joins ranks of those concerned about fuel

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri at Rolla has joined the ranks of public institutions and governmental bodies worrying about the fuel supply.

Mother seeks information about breakfast cereals

By Margaret Dana

Q. Please help! Now that my small son has reached an age where he wants all the fancy cereals, I find myself at a loss. Back when there was so much discussion about the nutritional values of various children's cereals, I failed to keep any articles concerning this. How can I find out what cereals are better for him?

A. Start with the fact that cereals are only a part of the day's foods every child needs for good nutrition. There are some 45 different nutrients needed. Then begin to study the labels on cereal packages. Each package will give important ingredients, information on added vitamins and minerals and the number of calories per serving. If the label says "Restored" or "Whole Grain," that cereal supplies thiamine, niacin, and iron just about as in the whole-grain original.

The "whole- grain" cereal also has the natural amounts of other useful nutrients. For children, such a cereal provides good balance of the nutrients needed as part of the day's total.

Q. Until recently I have been buying five- pound cans of honey in the supermarkets at a reasonable price. Now all I can find is "organic" honey at a much higher price. What is the reason for this? Surely the bees can't all seek "organically grown flowers for honey? Even regular honey, in small glass containers, has risen to an outrageous price. Why?

A. The answer primarily is the old one of supply and demand. The demand for honey has grown tremendously in recent years, partly, of course, because it can be sold as a "natural" food. But beekeepers have not been able to meet the demand since bees have limited scope for hunting their honey, and no possible control can be exercised over where or what they get their nectar from.

Recently I replaced my old bath towels and cloths with new ones-- two each of yellow, pink and blue. They cost well over $30.00. Imagine my despair when the wash cloths turned the water the color of the cloth when used. They have all now been washed numerous times and still color the water and, of course, are fading. The brand was a good, well- known one. But I neglected to read the fine print on the label. It says, "Wash colors separately. No bleach." The label covers the maker's responsibility, but I cannot feel there is an excuse for dyes used on towels and wash cloths not being color- fast. Other buyers should be warned to read those labels carefully so as to know what to expect.

A. Your reaction is both understandable and reasonable. Consumers generally assume that even today's fancy colors in household linens are intended to keep their colors when washed. Some dyes do. Others may be of special composition to get "newness" in the particular shade, or to simply start bright, to attract attention.

Loss of color, or migrating color, which prevents washing different colors together, usually results, which is why the label warns against washing colors together. The fading, however, will continue for some time. Until enough consumers protest this probably will not be changed, since the industry believes such color change is not important to most people.

Q. Is there a safe way to prepare a number of sandwiches ahead of their use, and keep them for school lunches as needed?

A. Yes, you can make a dozen or more at a time, and then freeze them. It is recommedned you use day-old bread, spread with butter, margarine or mayonnaise liberally, and use chicken or turkey for filling. These will keep well frozen, and will thaw out in time for noon lunch if packed in the morning in the lunch box.

Q. Last week I saw three toothpaste ads, all for the same brand and the same size tube. Each different store had a different sale price and different "normal" price. One was on sale at 29 cents, regularly 49 cents; another was on sale for 49 cents, regularly 89 cents; and the third, 39 cents, regularly 62 cents. It leaves one wondering just what the "normal" price really is. Is a dealer permitted to put any "former" price on merchandise he wants to?

A. The Federal Trade Commission in various actions has covered this question thoroughly. In a 1971 commission publication, they define "regular price" as: "the price, in the same quantity, quality and with the same service at which the seller or advertiser has openly and actively sold the product or service in the area involved during the last 30 days.

"Where the price has fluctuated, the "regular" price shall be the lowest price at which any substantial sales were made during this 30- day period."

The figures you quote as used by three stores in the same area suggest doubt that they are complying with this rule. I suggest the store's management should in each case be asked to explain.

Q. Will you please explain what kind of meat "jerky" is? I saw it advertised and since it said it needed no refrigeration I was interested since I am planning a camping trip.

A: "Jerky" is the name for a dried, sliced meat which was poplar many years ago for pioneers and prospectors. It used to take two or three months for natural curing, but today it is making a comeback in a new form. The product is sliced from lean beef, spiced, molded and formed before being cut into strips and dried.

It leaves one wondering just what the "normal" price really is. Is a dealer permitted to put any "former" price on merchandise he wants to?

A. The Federal Trade Commission in various actions has covered this question thoroughly. In a 1971 commission publication, they define "regular price" as: "the price, in the same quantity, quality and with the same service at which the seller or advertiser has openly and actively sold the product or service in the area involved during the last 30 days.

"Where the price has fluctuated, the "regular" price shall be the lowest price at which any substantial sales were made during this 30- day period."

The figures you quote as used by three stores in the same area suggest doubt that they are complying with this rule. I suggest the store's management should in each case be asked to explain.

Q. Will you please explain what kind of meat "jerky" is? I saw it advertised and since it said it needed no refrigeration I was interested since I am planning a camping trip.

A: "Jerky" is the name for a dried, sliced meat which was poplar many years ago for pioneers and prospectors. It used to take two or three months for natural curing, but today it is making a comeback in a new form. The product is sliced from lean beef, spiced, molded and formed before being cut into strips and dried.
